Success is a journey.

Open this book —

littered with captured memories of our triumphs and heartaches — and we open a chapter of our lives that is now past. Flip through the pages and wander down those half-remembered paths, for we will never walk them again.

Football fever, complete with students trailing after tailgates, filled our Saturdays as cheers swirled like confetti through the air.

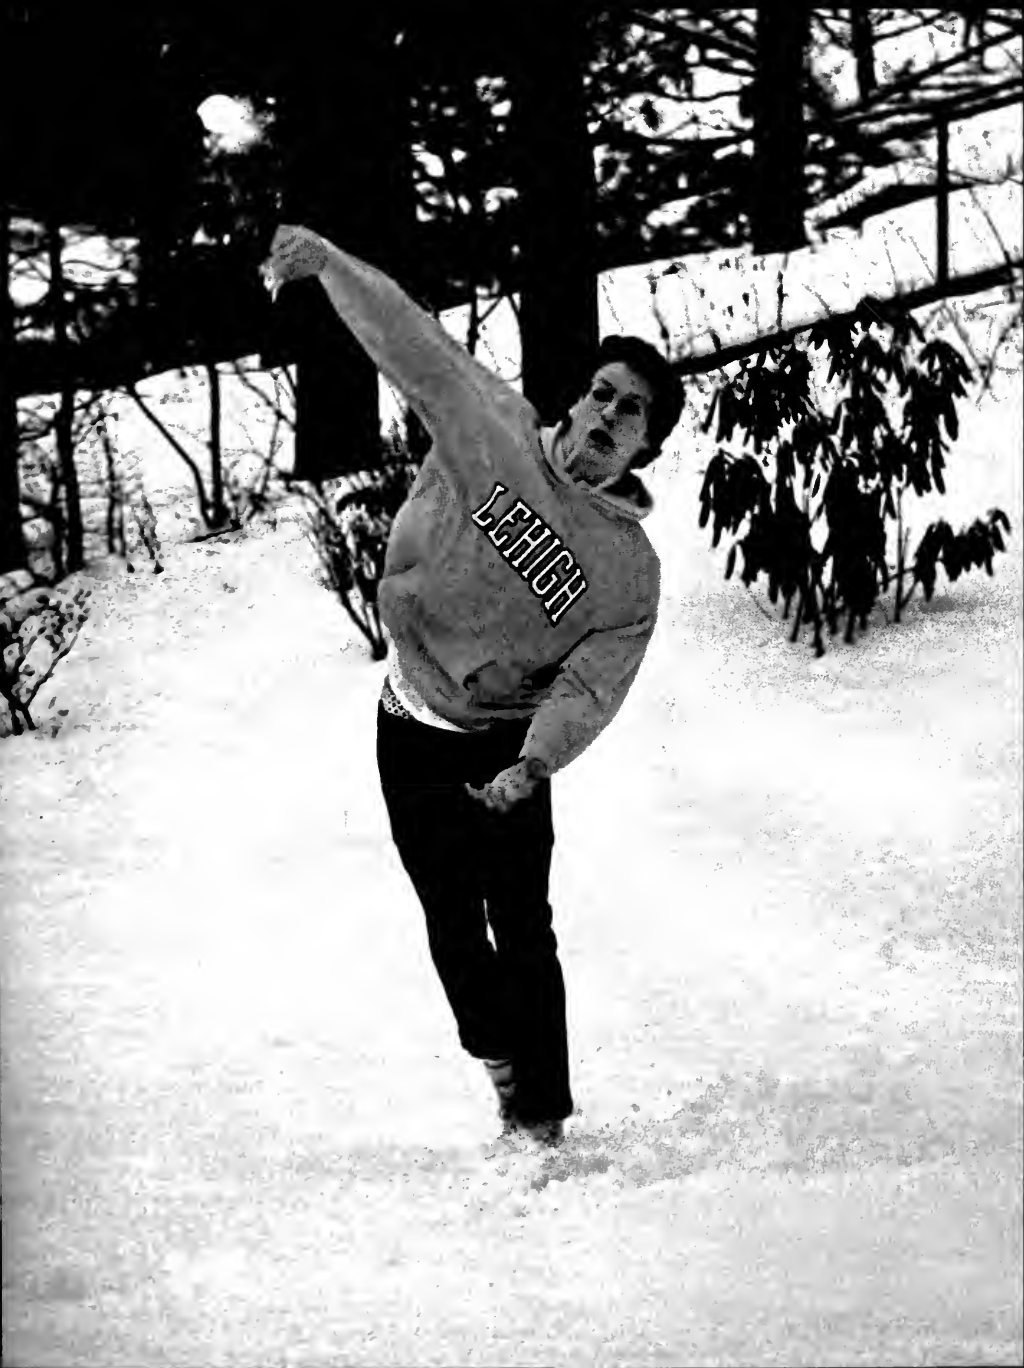

Linderman remained Linderman — gothic and stoic — in the face of a brand new Super-Mart; near completion and ready for occupation. Gossip ran along the zoo walls and scoping never ended while others escaped to the cold blue walls of Mart to study in silence.

Time clipped the leaves from the trees and the golden days chilled to an ice blue. Snow blanketed the ground as we trudged our way to classes and watched the mist slip from our lips.

We bundled ourselves in sweaters and huddled indoors. An undaunted few, however, made it to those 7:55s via UC food trays and snowball wars became study breaks.

Warm weather sparked our hopes as its pastel colors bloomed across campus. Many traded their white complexions for the bronze of Lauderdale and Bahamas in anticipation of baring tan lines on the UC lawn.

Greek Week/Spring Fest lightened our moods as we celebrated spring in the traditional Lehigh fashion — grecker eating, bed racing, and the banner regalia.

Finals brought graduation for some, a summer break for others and for seniors, four years gone by in a rush of struggles and smiles; and faces and fortunes to come as the phrase "tomorrow begins today" takes on new meaning.

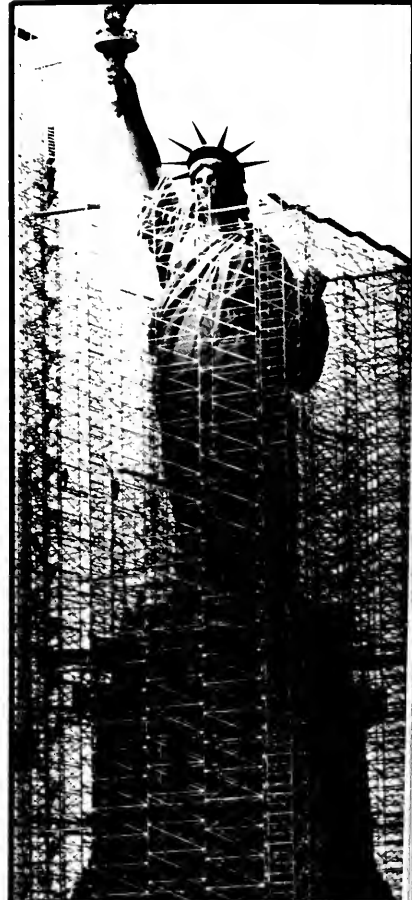

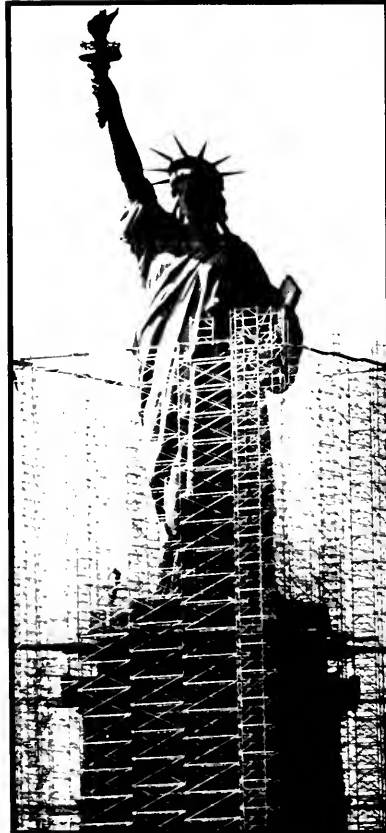

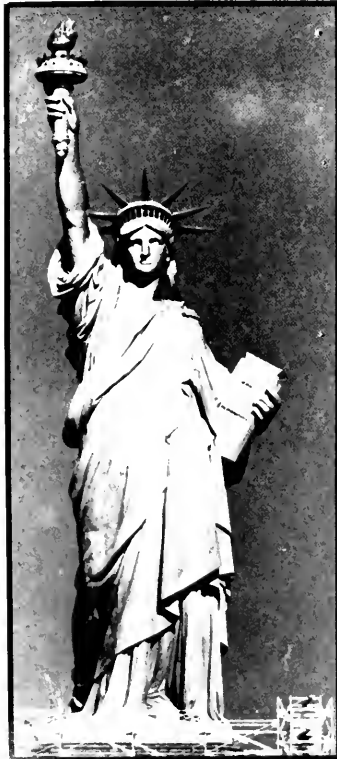

Our decisions have been made and our future has become our present.

Around the World

Pope John Paul II became a traveling man with his frequent trips abroad. South Korea, Thailand, Papua New Guinea and the Solomon Islands were his stops for May. In June, he paid Switzerland a visit. September lead him to Canada and October to Spain, Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico.

In May, the Pope (right) stopped at Mt. Hagen, Papua New Guinea where he met some of the 200,000 natives that turned out to welcome him in the highland jungle country.

In early 1984, Mission specialist Bruce McCandles takes a walk in space. He uses the so-called manned maneuvering unit to move away from the Shuttle Challenger during the eight-day space mission.

On the celebration of her 98th birthday in 1984, the necessity for restoring the Statue of Liberty became clear to the American people. Worn from constant pummeling by wind, salt air and acid rain, the Lady's age had begun to show.

As contributions from corporations and private citizens began to flow in, a two-year restoration, beginning in July of 1984, was made possible. The special touch in her beautification included a new gold plated torch.

Vanessa Williams was forced to surrender her title as Miss America at the request of pageant officials because she had posed nude for sexually explicit photos. She became the first of 57 Miss Americas to be forced to resign.

Suzette Charles, the first runner-up, became the 58th Miss America. She crowned Sharlene Wells, Miss Utah, at the Atlantic City Pageant in September.

On the night of the Oscars, both Robert Duvall and Shirley MacLaine appeared to accept their awards.

Duvall received an Oscar for his role as a washed-up country singer who overcomes alcoholism in the film "Tender Mercies." MacLaine won the best actress and Jack Nicholson won best supporting actor as an eccentric mother and pot-bellied ex-astronaut in "Terms of Endearment," which also won the best picture award.

Michael Jackson conducted his so-called Victory Tour to more than a dozen cities. Jackson, who had taken the nation by storm with his fancy dance steps and sequined glove in 1984, now is rarely seen under the spot light.

The 1984 Olympic

The United States did very well in the summer Olympics, winning 83 gold medals, 61 silver and 30 bronze.

Carl Lewis won four gold medals — the 100 meter, the 200 meter, the four 100 meter relay and the long jump. Mary Lou Retton won the all-round gold medal and led the gymnastic team to a silver medal. In addition, she won bronze medals for the floor exercise and the uneven parallel bars and took a silver medal for the vault. The Soviet Union and other Communist countries boycotted the Summer Olympics.

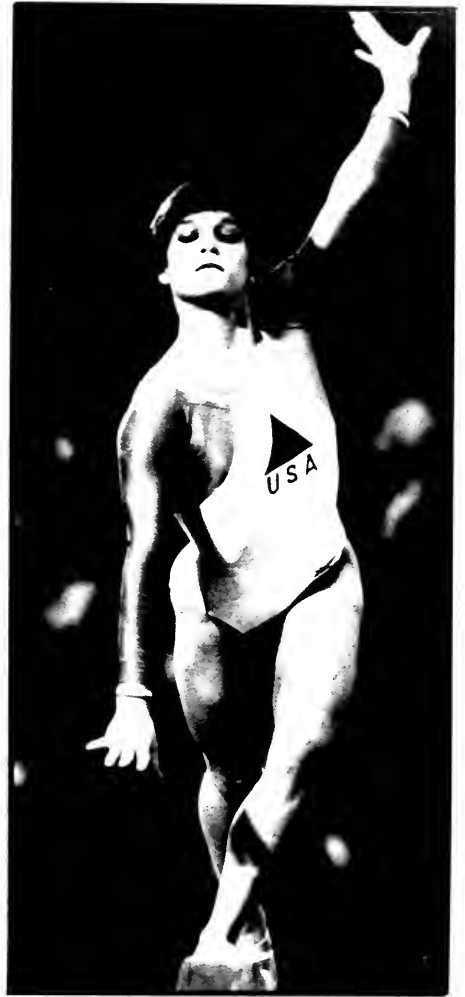

The Winter Olympics in Yugoslavia saw the United States win four gold and four silver medals.

Scott Hamilton won a gold in the men's figure skating and Steve Mahre won the gold medal in the Giant Slalom skiing event.

The 1984 Presidential Election

Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale made history when he chose a woman, Geraldine Ferraro, as his vice-presidential running mate. Mondale and Ferraro were nominated on the Democratic ticket at the party convention in San Francisco in July. He announced early in his campaign that to lower the federal deficit increased taxes would be necessary.

President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush sought re-election in 1984. Reagan vowed not to raise taxes and ran on his record of the previous four years.

President Reagan won re-election with the biggest electoral vote in the nation's history. He won 49 states with 49 percent of the total vote.

On January 21, 1985 president Ronald Reagan repeated the oath of office of the president before Chief Justice Warren Burger. His wife Nancy held the Bible during the ceremony under the Rotunda of the Capitol in Washington, DC.

The World Series

The World Series in 1984 saw the Detroit Tigers beat the San Diego Padres four games to one. The Chicago Cubs came close to getting into the series, but was bested by the Padres.

In the American League, the Kansas City Royals lost in the playoffs to the Tigers. Kirk Gibson (right) of Detroit jumps for joy after scoring in game five. Darrell Evans is the on-deck hitter.

In hopes that a frater soon would be there;*

*The students were nestled all snug in their beds,

With a chariot full of activities, and Mike Boyd too.*

*As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Down the chimney Mike Boyd came with a bound.
He was dressed in a toga, from his head to his foot,*

*And the fabric was all tarnished with ashes and soot,
A bundle of activities he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.*

*He was smiling and chuckling, a right jolly young

*And I laughed when I saw him about to speak;
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
He left us our racing bed, then turned with a jerk,
And laying a finger aside of his nose;*

*He sprang to his chariot, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they flew like the down of a thistle.*

*But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,

The Class of 1985 has graduated, and neither Lehigh nor the world will ever be the same again!

I am saying goodbye and Godspeed to graduating seniors who became lifelong friends, and I confess both sadness and excitement in that farewell. As sophomores you welcomed me and my family to Lehigh in a warm and wonderful way, and I'm deeply grateful for your acceptance. I know that you've all been eager to graduate, but I hope you felt a twinge of nostalgia as you walked the campus as undergraduates for the last time.

Tomorrow, and for many more tomorrows, you'll return to campus as successful alumnae and alumni with the good times at Lehigh gradually dominating the hard times in your memories. You'll glow when you come back, and we'll be proud of your achievements. I hope that you'll remember your president, in whose fond memories you'll always have a special place.

The Dean of Student's Office

Gearing Up For Action

Change seems to have marked the 1984-85 year here at Lehigh — the new social policy, the occupation of Taylor, and the opening of Super-Mart. All of these changes effect the student body in one way or another; yet, a less notable change to the students is one that effects them the most. That is, the New Dean of Students Office. The people have changed, the job titles and responsibilities have been altered and, thus, the office has a fresh look and feel about it.

At it's head, we have Dean of Students John Smeaton. In the ranks, we have Associate Dean Jennifer Volchko, Associate Dean Robert Cohen, Associate Dean Mark Erickson and, the newest member of the team, Assistant Dean Janet Walbert.

In the Beginning

When Dean Smeaton took his post at Lehigh, he knew that there was a fairly substantial number of new people on the dean of students staff at the beginning of the fall semester and so his hopes were that they could, "commit a lot of our energy to developing an effective team that can fulfill the duties of our offices. Part of that is learning how each other works and working together, sort of supporting one another."

An example of this would be Jennifer Volchko's comments during her first month at

Dean John Smeaton — Never a moment's rest

He continued on to say that he thinks, "we have many opportunities in different settings to aid in the education for our students which then enhances what happens in the classroom. So the two together combine to provide a much richer, fuller experience for our students."

Possible Programs

Putting this into action, Jennifer Volchko

It seems that the individuals in the Dean of Students office enjoy working with and being around the Lehigh student. From Janet Walbert to Mark Erickson to Robert Cohen to Jennifer Volchko and up to John Smeaton there is a lightness and openness in their respective offices that says, "Come in and talk to us."

"The focus is on their (the students) growth and development and we are engaged in that development. It's really a mutually beneficial experience. I like working with bright students," commented Dean Smeaton

Equipped to deal with Issues

As for being able to deal with campus issues, important both to administration and students, the dean of students office is well equipped. As we all know, college campuses are not classic tranquil places, they are places of energy and enthusiasm. As a result, issues do arise.

"Getting to know our students," said Smeaton, "is going to help me and our staff become more capable of responding to issues as they arise. The better I know the faculty and my fellow administrators, the better I'm going to be prepared to address issues and anticipate issues, and work with students to try to anticipate and alleviate matters before they get too out of hand."

"Getting to know our students is going to help me and our staff become more capable of responding to issues as they arise."

— Dean John Smeaton

Lehigh. She remarked that Dean Smeaton is "a very personable person and so I feel very comfortable with him. I know that the support is there in the way that he allows me — and others around him — to take the direction they feel is necessary to get the job done."

Office's Importance to Education

According to Smeaton, student affairs and the dean of student's office's role is one of the most important in education.

"We are educators," he commented. "We don't stand in front of a classroom and lecture, but we work on the person, if you will, and character development."

feels that she should act in an advisory capacity — teach students how to make their own programs and be there to advise them.

"This might take may time," she remarked, "but, that's part of the education process."

Along the same lines, she wants to get the students involved in leadership training programs. "Student leaders are expected to act as leaders; yet, many times, they are thrown into these situations without having been trained," she remarked. "Many need help developing those skills for they are not something you are born with — rather, they are something you develop."

Communication

Communications lines appear to be the most important to the Office's ability to function. "By keeping the lines of communication open," said Smeaton, "by discussing things, by involving people in the decision process, we're going to arrive at decisions that are ultimately more acceptable to everyone."

While many of the changes and the new thoughts we see coming from the Dean of Students office this year have been innovative and potentially good for Lehigh, it's students, faculty and administration there is one change that saddens many. Dean Robert Cohen had announced his resignation effective in August. The entire campus, as well as the dean of student's office, mourns the loss of his expertise.

A Learning Year

This was a learning year for this new staff. As Volchko commented, "We'll watch the system for a year and then make decisions for change based on need."

Next year we may be seeing more changes take effect as this new office goes into action.

Assistant Dean Janet Walbert aids David Polakoff with a problem.

Associate Dean Jennifer Volchko discusses a new program.

The College of Arts and Sciences Offers a Range of Directions

By Doug Brogowski

The College of Arts and Sciences, Lehigh's most diversified college, continues to educate and challenge the minds of students through a wide variety of courses offered to everyone.

Three Areas of Study

The College's fifteen departments and three divisions offer a wide range of directions that arts and science students can follow. A Bachelor of Arts degree is offered in three different areas of study: Humanities, Social Sciences, and Mathematics and Natural Science.

Humanities include Architecture, Art, Classics, English, Journalism, Modern Foreign Languages, Music, Philosophy, Religion, and Theater.

Social Sciences include American Studies, Economics, Foreign Careers, Government, History, International Relations, Social Relations, and Urban Studies.

Mathematics and Natural Science offers Applied Science, Biology, Chemistry, Geology, Mathematics, Natural Science, Physics, Pre-Dental, Pre-Med, and Psychology. In addition to the B.A. degree, a B.S. degree is also available in certain areas.

Talented Faculty and Staff

The College of Arts and Sciences, however, is not just fields of study; it is the talented and friendly faculty and staff that make it such a successful part of the University.

Opportunities for Students

Headed by Dean John Hunt, this College

turns gifted but raw and untrained high school graduates into working, thinking and valuable members of society.

The various potential fields of study give the Arts and Sciences student at Lehigh University untold opportunities for education and advancement to the career of their choice.

The talented and friendly faculty and staff make the College a successful part of the University.

Dean John Hunt

Professor Steven Krawiec Hopelessly Academic

By Deb Pierce

Genetics is the science of an organism's heredity and characteristics. It involves the transfer of biological information from cell to cell, parents to offspring, and generation to generation, from the simplest single cell organism to the most complex human. What better person to fit the mold of college professor than the geneticist, one who is fascinated by interactions and communication? Dr. Steven Krawiec is the prime example of how these two interests combine so effectively.

Undergraduate Years

Dr. Krawiec shared his interest in biology with a fascination with philosophy during his undergraduate years at Brown University. Although he recognized biology as his forte, received his BA from Brown in biology, and chose this as his field of graduate study, his philosophical side was never extinguished and remains evident in his character and teaching techniques.

Lehigh's mix of research and teaching is in good balance.

Recognizing he Desired to Teach

As his graduate work toward a PHD at Yale progressed, Krawiec realized his professional calling — teaching. He admires intelligent people who have the ability to share their knowledge; he feels that this combination leads to a "great human character." According to Krawiec, teaching professionals must "acquire a large body of information, evaluate it critically, and be prepared to let new information replace old. They, therefore, have to be alert and honest, truthful to self." He explains that this "requires a practiced intellect" and "serves you as a human being because you are using your mind in a very active, self-conscious, self-aware fashion. Thus, it is guaranteed that you will develop a full human potential — because you have to."

Sharing his Knowledge

Sharing his learning gives much satisfaction to Krawiec, but he strives for even more. He adds, "To master and share is worthwhile, but if you can also genuinely increase the body of knowledge, and hand it back in an expanded fashion, then this is a major achievement and contribution." It seems as if Krawiec lives by his words of wisdom.

In September of 1970 Krawiec began teaching an all-male Lehigh as assistant professor of biology. In 1976 he was promoted to associate professor, and was tenured to a full professor in 1982. His only block of time off in this 12 year progression was a sabbatical in 1978-79. He spent this as a Senior International Fellow with the National Institutes of Health at the University of Madrid in Spain.

A Good Balance at Lehigh

Krawiec is "extremely satisfied" with his job and thinks "Lehigh and its students are great." Although his first love is the classroom, he enjoys the Lehigh mix of research and teaching, and believes it is in "good balance." He feels that "Lehigh allows personal and intellectual freedom . . . latitude — you can be who you want to be, you needn't conform." Lehigh and Steve Krawiec seem to be a perfect match.

The Fall 1985 semester will begin a two-year appointment for Krawiec as the Associate Dean of the Arts and Science College. He sees this as a "period of service" to the University and "an opportunity to contribute to the character of the institution." Krawiec has enjoyed Lehigh, and looks forward to using his enthusiasm in his term as Dean to make what he hopes will be "a significant contribution." After this time, he will return home to the biology department.

Future Plans

1990 marks a milestone for Krawiec — after 20 years at Lehigh he will step back, evaluate his progress and potential, and try to find the path for his next 20 years. He anticipates, however, that he will remain in the academic world. When asked to describe himself in a few words Krawiec chose "hopelessly academic."

Annie-Laurie Wheat

A Professor and her Sheep

By Lesley Broomall

"Baaa ... " This is the sound Annie-Laurie Wheat wakes up to every morning at 6:00 am. A. Lehigh assistant professor of theater, Wheat does more than teach classes and direct plays. She raises sheep.

How it began

Two springs ago, Wheat saw a "lambs for sale" sign at a neighbor's house. She decided she was "tired of mowing the lawn" so she bought one lamb. Now, she says proudly, she has eight sheep named after T.S. Eliot's "Cats." Sheep are not that affectionate, she comments, but still the same, she has become attached to her flock. She is so attached, in fact, that although she loves to eat lamb, she says, "Never my own!"

Preparation is needed

Wheat lives on eight acres of land in the country, one of which is not wooded. On this section is her home and small barn which had to be totally redone. To prepare for raising sheep, she read the book, Raising Sheep the Modern Way. Now she gets up every morning at six to feed the sheep and clean the barn. "It takes time," she conceded, "but the time is worth it."

A learning experience

"I've learned so much I've never dreamed of about the life cycle and farm animals," Wheat continues. She discovered that sheep, like humans, get colds. Consequently, she now knows how to administer shots. She has to separate mothers and their newborn lambs from the rest of the flock because the ewe does not always realize the lamb is hers. "They are stupid animals," she admits. Another exciting fact discovered is that lambs double in size two weeks after birth.

Wheat's special interest in sheep carries over to her office. Among colorful victorian costumes draped on the walls are posters of sheep and lambs of various breeds. She points to one, the Hampshire, and says, "This is the breed most similar to mine."

Other interests

In addition to raising the sheep, Wheat wants to learn to spin wool. She knits but still has yet to take spinning lessons. She has gotten the wool by having local people shear her sheep. She also has a spinning wheel ready for use. "I would like to wear a sweater that I can say resulted from the grass and "I think the more diversity the better. These activities help me to be a more interesting person and teacher."

— Annie-Laurie Wheat

sheep I grew and which I made." she says hopefully.

A few Problems

Although having sheep has added joy to her life, there have been some troublesome occasions. Two of her sheep have died — one from a hole in the bladder and the other, a ram, got shipping fever, a type of pneumonia. Once, she remembers, one sheep got its head stuck in the fence for a few hours. Rams can be dangerous as Wheat found out when one 200 pounder butted her from behind.

Not only does Wheat have sheep, but she has a french lob-eared bunny named Mr.

Potter. He runs free, coming to her porch every morning to eat. She often encounters, she describes, "four or so of my lambs playing with the bunny. They literally jump over him, playing 'jump the bunny.' Mr. Potter thinks he's a sheep."

An active professor

Sheep are good pets, Wheat feels because they can mostly take care of themselves for a short time. This way, Wheat can leave the flock for a weekend in the summer to enjoy another one of her hobbies — sailing her 30-foot sailboat from Oxford, Maryland. This active Lehigh faculty also has her own garden to grow vegetables.

When asked if she thinks all these activities make her a better person and professor, she answers, "I think the more diversity the better. These activities help me to be a more interesting person and teacher. My students are always the first to know when a lamb has been born."

The College of Business and Economics Provides Research Opportunities

By Nicola Pugliese

The College of Business and Economics provides superior teaching and preparation for a successful career in business. Ranked among the best business schools in the East, the college contains the departments of Accounting and Law, Economics, Finance, and Management and Marketing.

Independent research

Aside from the variety of courses offered to help students become acquainted with the business world, the College also boasts a Center for Economic Education, the Rauch Center for Economic Development, the Small Business Center, and the Fairchild-Martindale Center for Private Enterprise. Some of these offer graduates and undergraduates the opportunity to independently research various aspects of the business world. This year saw the formation of the Institute for the Study of Commodities, which enables students to research commodities and commodity trading.

Micro-computer addition

Another recent addition to the Business School is the Micro-computer which contains IBM P.C.'s and various software packages. The lab will be used by various advanced level business courses.

Ranked among the best business schools in the East, the College provides superior preparation for a successful career in business.

Two alumni reminiscing

John '84: You know, I've really come to miss this place.

Bob '85: Me Too. Gosh, remember walking up all those hills?

John '84: Yes and Greek Week?

Bob '85: Sure. How about Eco 1 lectures with J.R. Aronson?

John '85: Right. I wonder if he's still teaching that course.

It is likely that he will be. According to J. Richard Aronson, professor of Economics, "Some people would be bored teaching Eco 1 year after year. I don't suffer boredom," he says.

"I'm happy. I like what I'm doing."

— Professor J.R. Aronson

The Legend Lives On

Aronson, who has been at Lehigh since 1965, has become something of a legend. His quick wit has made economics lectures memorable to many freshmen and sophomores in all three colleges.

Some of the lectures are a little offbeat. Aronson admits. "For instance, in the age of dogs," he says with a smile, "two dogs ran into the middle of my lecture on supply and demand. They jumped up on stage and started making love. Since this got the student's attention, I labeled one dog supply and the other demand and finished my lecture."

"When the place went crazy, I had to sneak out the back door," he laughs.

"The Marching 97 also makes a stop in Eco 1 every fall," Aronson adds. "It's funny because you never know when it's going to happen."

Although he enjoys the routine of teaching Eco 1, Aronson likes to blend new challenges with routine. It alleviates boredom, he notes.

Taylor College

Aronson's life is anything but boring. For instance, he has just become faculty advisor for Taylor College.

"It's an experiment," he says. "I thought it would be interesting." As faculty advisor, Aronson and his wife will live in Taylor College for the most part of the week while still maintaining their Bethlehem home.

"I will be involved in organizing events that go on at Taylor," he says. "And I will be working closely with the Dean's Office."

"It was the perfect time for my wife and I to try something like this, since our own children had cleared out," he comments.

A Family Man

Aronson smiles as he mentions his three daughters who have become legends themselves as anecdotal subjects in many of his Eco 1 lectures. "Two of the girls are at Cornell University and one is a teaching assistant in the English Department here."

In addition to advising in Taylor College, Aronson is director of the Fairchild-

Martindale Center for the Study of Private Enterprise in the business college.

The Importance of Research

Aside from all these activities, Aronson considers research to be the most important. "The life of most professors is scholarly research. Students should have a better idea of the academic non-class dimension of what goes on at universities such as this."

"Professors don't magically learn their subjects," he says. "They are constantly doing research."

Aronson's research has recently resulted in his writing a textbook entitled "Public Finance", which will be released in November. "It's a basic textbook that deals with explaining expenditures of government and the tax system.

With all of these interests, Aronson admits that it is a trick to organize his time. "Basically, I'm a well-organized person. That's what my wife hates most about me," he jokes.

Future Goals

"Seriously," he adds, "I'm happy. I like what I'm doing." But what does Aronson see for himself in the future?

"President." He says it with a straight face, before he begins to laugh.

Mira Baron Only Visiting Lehigh

ing different forms of education and their effectiveness from an economic point of view. She feels, too, that it is education that has a direct effect on the economy. She will not, however, continue her research in the United States, for in August she will return to Israel.

Students in other Nations

Professor Baron notes that Lehigh students "are very hard-working people". She feels that Lehigh students are too reliant on teachers, but at the same time are very well-rounded individuals. As far as a comparison to Israeli Students, she maintains that there is a great difference. They are less interested in their social life because most are married upon entering college and already have set goals while America's students tend to do more searching.

By Mark Meagher

Mira Baron comes to Lehigh via Israel. She completed her undergraduate work at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, majoring in Statistics and Economics. She later attended the Technion in Israel where she received her Masters in Economics. At the Technion she was encouraged to further her studies in the United States. Thus, she was granted a scholarship to attend the University of Pennsylvania where she received her Phd in Urban and Regional Economics.

Past Experience

In between her Masters and Phd degrees she worked in Israel for a few years on several projects. Among them included a Cost Benefit analysis of where to locate a cement quarry. This presented a sticky problem for her team, because the most inexpensive location was a nature reserve. So, with this in mind, she developed several alternatives outlining cost, geological feasibility and transportation needs. The final outcome was to maintain the park as a nature reserve. Professor Baron points out that her work was not decision oriented, but only to statistically acquire the facts and figures for others to work from in their decisions.

Teaching at Lehigh

At Lehigh, Mira Baron teaches both statistics and a graduate course, Methods in Regional Science. She notes that it is the graduate course she enjoys teaching most because it most relates to her past graduate work.

Special Hobbies

In her spare time, what little there is, she listens classical music and reads novels. Her favorite topic includes autobiographical work on victims of the Holocaust. She is quick to point out that it is these works that offer hope. One must overlook the horrors of the Holocaust, she continues, and concentrate on the bonds of humanity that are stressed.

Future Goals

Her future goals include continuing teaching and her research. Among the first things on her agenda is research papers on the rebuilding of neighborhoods and the re-evaluation of the education of the people throughout the world. She will attempt to tackle the education systems of the United States, parts of Europe and Israel, evaluat-

The College of Engineering and Physical Sciences Offers Personalized Programs of Study

The College of Engineering and Physical Sciences emphasizes interdisciplinary education and training. This interdisciplinary idea further reflects the college's emphasis on the flexibility in its curricula, which enables students to design personalized programs leading directly into other professional colleges or professions.

A Variety of Offerings

The College consists of eight departments: Chemical Engineering, Chemistry or Biochemistry, Civil Engineering, Electrical and Computer Engineering, Fundamental Sciences, Industrial Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Metallurgy and Material Science, and Physics.

A Diversified Curriculum

In addition to mathematics, engineering, and science course work essential for the particular degree, each curriculum has

The College's emphasis on interdisciplinary education reflects the flexibility in its curriculum.

General Studies requirements in the humanities and social sciences.

The Engineering Approach

Students are not trained to be specialists in any given area. Rather, they are educated to apply "The Engineering Approach" to identification, articulation, and resolution of problems. These activities call for a combination of practical and conceptual intelligence which they will use in their future professions.

Professor Douglas Frey Enjoys Both Computers and Guitars

By Clare Crabtree

A knock sounds at the door. "Come on in," he says. A student enters and they begin to discuss some papers.

"Did anyone complain about my grading?" the student asks.

"Of course, they hated you," he responds. Obviously, this is a joke and they both begin to laugh.

The student leaves and he leans back in his chair and smiles. He is wearing jeans and a sweater. At first glance you might think he's a student rather than a professor.

Even after he begins to talk, you do not lose that first impression. His speech is filled with expressions such as "it's a drag" and "awfully much fun."

But Doug Frey, assistant Professor of computer and electrical engineering, has been at Lehigh for six years.

Frey Enjoys Music

"You asked about my hobbies," he says. "Well one of them is ant collecting."

"No, I'm kidding," he laughs. "I've always wanted to say something like that thought."

"Seriously, my main hobby is music." As he puts it, "I'm rock and roller from way back."

Frey began playing the drums when he was young and also learned to play the guitar along the way. During high school and through college, he played in a band with his brother.

As early as high school, music was very important, according to Frey. "Rock and roll kept me from getting tied up with the nerds all the time."

"I don't play with a band now," he remarks, "but who knows if I will someday. Now that I have a house, I've been hacking around with it more."

He explains that he became good at electronics for the band. "It was a hobby before it became a profession."

Past Education

Frey attended Lehigh undergraduate as well as graduate school. "I had gotten all my degrees here and I was about to leave," he explains, "so I started looking around for jobs. But, the chairman of the department asked me to say and teach. So, I did."

"My salvation is that I never hang around here too long. I maintain a low profile."

Concern for Others

Describing himself as a Neoclassical Renaissance Man because it reminds him of a Monty Python skit, Frey considers himself "people oriented." "Everything I do, I tend to think about people. This blossoms into a philosophy. That's what teaching's all about," he says.

"Isn't it strange that someone who hated school so much would end up back at school teaching?"

— Asst. Professor Doug Frey

Future Goals

But teaching isn't always what Frey wants to do. "Scientifically, I'd like to make a contribution to the study of nonlinear systems. And as far as engineering goes, I'd like to get to a point where I'm involved with a few good companies as a consultant."

"I don't have a tendency to make long-term life goals. My goals are usually short-term," he comments.

"I wonder if music will enter more into my life," he adds. "That's one of the fun possibilities."

Frey admits that on a personal level if you don't have some goals, you end up "sort of plodding through life."

He describes his school years as "an interesting trip. I hated school. I spent 12 years watching the clock. I always had something better to do."

"Isn't it strange that someone who hated school so much would end up back at school teaching?" he asks.

No, it's not that strange. Not after you see him smiling and joking in his classes. It seems that he has a great rapport with his students. Maybe it's because he's young. Or maybe he's been through the same things and he understands.

Janice Phillips Finds Future Growth at Lehigh

By Deb Pierce

What do you get when you mix 4 research projects; 8 graduate students; research proposals, and grant requests; excess telephone calls; meetings; coffee; and the New York Times? One very well designed chemical engineering system — Janice Phillips.

A Career Begins

Dr. Phillip's research career began in the summer of her high school junior year when she was sponsored by the National Science Foundation to do research at the Albert Einstein Cancer Research Center in Philadelphia. She took advantage of this opportunity to evaluate scientific research as a career choice, and decided that straight science was "not her bag" — there was not enough mathematical involvement. Her interest shifted to the field of chemical engineering, in which she obtained her BS degree from Villanova University in 1973. Phillips accepted a full-time chemical engineering position with Air Products upon her as an assistant professor. She completed her doctoral thesis while at Lehigh, and received her PhD degree from Penn in May 1982. April 1985 marked an additional milestone for Phillips as she was tenured to associate professor.

nology research groups at the graduate level in the country," Phillips explains. "My grad students are very good graduate students, and I want to be able to have people turn around and recognize the quality of work they do."

There is little doubt that people recognize the high quality of their leader.

Phillips is sometimes frustrated with the lack of undergraduate contact with the chemical engineering faculty.

graduation and gained her first exposure to Lehigh as a part-time graduate student.

Later Education

After two assignments at Air Products, Phillips found her interests fall in the area of research and development and realized that further education would be necessary to advance as she wished. At the same time she met Dr. Arthur Humphrey, a consultant for Air Products and the Dean of Engineering at the University of Pennsylvania. In September 1975, Phillips began full-time graduate study at Penn under Humphrey. She received her MS in chemical engineering in December 1976, and completed her doctoral research by the summer of 1980.

In August 1980 Phillips returned to Lehigh to join the chemical engineering department

A Position at Lehigh

Although Phillips did not anticipate her career following this path, she is very satisfied and pleased with her position. She particularly enjoys that "teaching on this level provides the opportunity to work with other people and to learn all the things that there are to learn — through colleagues, graduate students, and undergraduate students." She is sometimes frustrated by the lack of undergraduate contact with the chemical engineering faculty, as she feels both parties reap benefits from this interaction.

Future Goals

Phillips has found her forte, and foresees her energies concentrated on research for, at least, the tangible future. It is her wish to develop at Lehigh "one of the best biotech-

Super Mart will be a Super Library

by Deb Pierce

On May 2, 1983 the ground was broken—a 4 million dollar anonymous donation permitted initiation of the construction of the infamous "Super Mart." The anonymous contributors have since been recognized as the Martindales, for whom the building is dedicated and named: The E.W. Fairchild-Martindale Library and Computing Center. According to Martindale, he gave the sun in order to "speed up development of the facility" and to "give a shot in the arm to the construction industry in the Lehigh Valley."

"Super Mart" consumes 80,000 square feet of Lehigh's lower campus. The computing center, which houses approximately 50

DEC and CYBER terminals, a micro-processor lab, and various offices, occupies 20,000 of these square feet, while the other 60,000 are dedicated to library functions.

The Design

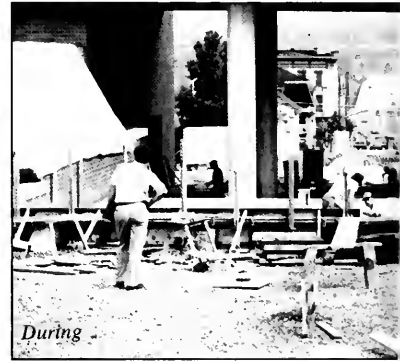

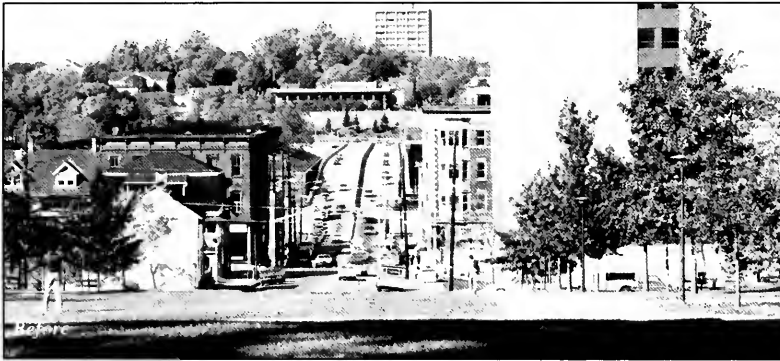

Sharon Stegler, the assistant director for science and engineering, explains, "Super Mart was designed and built based on the ideal that knowledge keeps expanding, but the form it is presented in will shrink." Physically, the library's resources will become more compact as the influence of computers continues to grow.

The building has been designed to accommodate computers in every foreseeable use. The first obvious application will be the computerization of the card catalogue from any terminal, anywhere on campus, 24 hours a day. Thus, the panic of the student who, at 7:45 am cannot recall the author to cite in the bibliography of his research paper due at 8:00 am, shall become extinct, as well as the hike down the hill to only find that the book you need has been checked out. Looking at the long run, it is estimated that in approximately 10-15 years most of the data bases, such as the Handbook of Chemistry and Physics, and journals, which now occupy more than 20% of the library space, will be on-line and terminal-accessible. Overall, the rate of library growth physically shall be cut in half.

Computer Terminal space available

Computer terminals may be hooked up in most areas of the library. All of the new carols are electrically and mechanically designed to comfortably accommodate terminals, as are the counters and tables. The so-called "thousand dollar paper-cutter table" in the lobby along side of the elevator will actually hold 17 terminals which will directly access the card catalogue. In addition, terminals and telephones will be installed on the upper floors by the copy machines so that one may access the "lobby resources" without having to "troop all the way down the stairs." The stack areas are also adaptable, allowing the installation of equipment just about anywhere as people's needs are understood.

During

Computer to replace librarians?

One may wonder if eventually people will not have to go to the library to use its resources, that the huge building will not be needed, and the knowledge of librarians may be found on computer discs. Siegler feels that this will never be the case. However, she does foresee a possible shift in the manner of usage — "people will still go to the library and need librarians, but they will spend their time in the library thinking (rather than simply gathering information)".

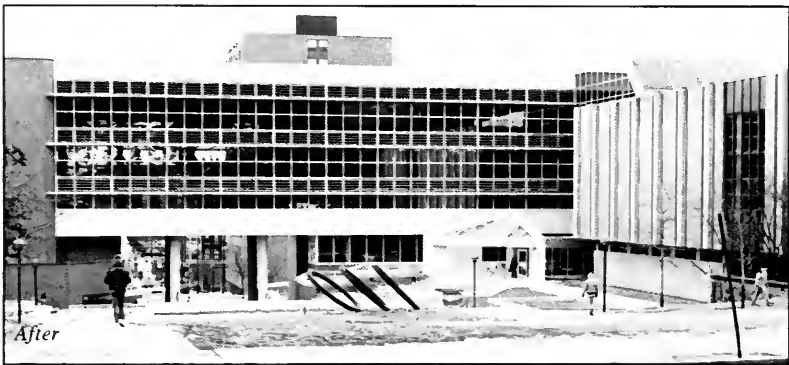

Super-Mart not complete

The entire library expansion shall be completed by the beginning of the Fall 1985 semester. At that time, Mart will accommodate 700 students, twice that of Old Mart, as well as all of the science, engineering, social science, and business literature. In this high tech era it is necessary for people of various disciplines to be able to effectively interact — engineers with accountants, scientists with psychologists — and, Siegler explains, this is the basis behind the distribution of literature within the Lehigh system.

"With the size of this place (Super-Mart), why do we need Linderman?"

Linderman, which will contain strictly the humanities collection, will give up half of its 500,000 volumes to Mart, creating more space and a more comfortable and functional library. It is projected that Linderman will become more active for initial undergraduate learning, while Mart will cater to more advanced undergraduate, graduate, and professional research. Today, Linderman caters to 60% of the library users, leaving the lonely 40% at Mart. Come next fall, it is estimated that 80% of the people on campus will be using Mart, while Linderman quiets down to just 20%.

Dedication

The new facility was dedicated on Founders Day and, Siegler emphasizes, is owed completely to the students. In 1976 the Forum complained that Mart was overcrowded and that the students needed more library space, and the University administration responded. Thus, we have been blessed with this immense, modern structure in which to spend our long hours of learning. One student was overheard saying, "With the size of this place, why do we need Linderman?" To this Siegler replied, "But, then what would we do with Linderman?"

The old Lehigh charm.

The building has been designed to accommodate computers in every foreseeable use.

Getting Active

A college education should include more than reading the words printed in a text book, attending classes and studying for exams. A part of the college experience should include becoming involved in the clubs and activities available on campus. Through these, students have the opportunity to meet new people, develop a sense of responsibility and have something another than school work to occupy a portion of their free time.

A bolder, bigger front page banner announced the 1984-85 Brown and White. This indicated a new look in layouts and some other reasonable, not radical, changes to an old, conservative newspaper.

Campus conservatives did not care much for the new Brown and White — its look or its style, which was clearly anti-everything. Critics called it sensationalistic, irresponsible and unprofessional!

— Senior class officers screamed at the stance against the gift campaign and disapproved of the endorsement of candidates in class elections.

— SAC also disapproved of the SAMMY connection coverage.

— SAMMY complained all year of unfair news play, and several times tried to influence the paper through the business staff, which also received some bad news by the end of the semester.

— IFC paranoia raged every time Greek letters appeared on the front page.

— Administrators sweated the disclosure of their salaries.

— Faculty fumed over the Discipline Committee coverage concerning the case officer role.

— The gays cried sensationalism during the reporting of the formation of their counseling group and the investigation of gay issues.

— A controversial Clown and Gripe caused all conservatives to cringe.

— Brown and White advisers Robert Sullivan, Journalism Chairman, and Professor Walter Trimble, also endured the unwanted abuse, personal letters and irate phone calls from disgruntled students, faculty, administrators, and even trustees.

The 1984-85 Brown and White editors offer a quote from Walter Lippmann in defense: "Responsible journalism is responsible in the last analysis to the editor's own conviction of what, whether interesting or only important, is in the public interest."

And some of the interesting and important stories in the public interest this year included a new social policy, a discipline precedent that banned alcohol from Pi lambda Phi, the formation of a gay counseling group, the first-time offering of no-need scholarships, the basketball team gaining Lehigh's first-ever NCAA tournament bid, and Delta Dig Fraternity's dissolution for three years for hazing.

Another big story this year was the paper's transition from pencils and paper to computers and typesetting, as students became 'pioneers' with Peerless Printers on Polk Street succumbing to technology. Bernie's bitching, the Rev's rantings and Tommy's tantrums will be sorely missed as students will endure the aggravating paste-up process themselves next year. Self-sufficient student production will add extra hours to an already over-extended work load.

Few readers realize the time spent on the paper, as the editorial staffers spend between 15 and 30 hours a week, with the editorial board clocking 30 to 40 hours per week, and the editor pulling two all-nighters in a 60 hour week. Grades, sleep and socializing suffers as well as the paper when things come down to the wire. However those who work on the paper, balancing academic and newspaper deadlines, find the same satisfaction that Lee Iacocca discovered: "In addition to my studies, I got involved in lots of extra-curricular activities, by far the most interesting was the time I spent on the school paper, The Brown and White."

Celebrating the Beauty of Music

For the members of the Lehigh University Choir, this year proved to be one of the most enjoyable and exciting years ever. The fall semester marked the return of director Steven Sametz from his sabbatical at Harvard University. In addition, the choir gained approximately twenty new members before embarking on the annual retreat to Camp Akiba in the Poconos before classes

Evening Prayer by Bradley Ellingboe, Haver L'Adonai by student conductor Hermina Popig and Gabriel by Steven Sametz. Gabriel featured soprano Jeanette Thompson, the newest member of the voice faculty.

Happy Birthday, Handel

Prior to the start of classes in January, the choir spent a week of "fun in the sun" in Puerto Rico. Concerts were held in Ponce, began.

Concerts Display Versatility

The Parent's Day Concert in October displayed the choir's versatility. The concert repertoire consisted of Chinese, Japanese, Italian, Spanish, Latin, and English pieces. Christmas Vespers was especially exciting. Premiered at the performance were three selections written especially for the choir:

Guayama and San Juan. Immediately upon return, preparations for Spring Vespers began. The concert consisted of the complete performance of Handel's Messiah in celebration of Handel's 300th birthday in February. Stephen Oosting, formerly of the voice faculty, and Bradley Ellingboe were among the concert's featured soloists.

Students in Control

The New Social Policy

By Mark Meagher

Lehigh students are taking a large step toward their own destiny. Indeed they have been delegated the authority to design and implement new rules and standards regarding social policy on campus.

Other Campuses Restricted

This may not seem out of the ordinary, but it is. While Lehigh students are being entrusted to regulate social policy, other campuses across the country are having their social lives more restricted by their school's administration. For instance, Bucknell, practically in our own backyard, has tight-

This is a time to be aware and alert of your fellow students.

ened up social policy. Also, an extreme case of regulation came into effect at Amherst College which saw all fraternities abolished by the Board of Trustees. Try to picture Lehigh without fraternities or sororities.

Even though it may appear ludicrous and downright absurd to even contemplate Lehigh's campus going dry, it is a reality at many other schools. In the wake of this, it seems a bit odd that our Board of Trustees should do the unthinkable: loosen the reigns on social regulation.

The New Social Policy

It might help to understand what exactly the students have done with this new power. To begin, the revised social policy has give standards and three goals. For instance, parties must be of a reasonable size, the host is responsible for the safety and behavior of all guests, etc.

It must be understood, too, that none of the standards or goals is written in stone. As changes occur on campus, changes, as warranted, will occur in the social policy.

This situation may sound ideal, but it is not, by any means, a permanent resolution. The Boards of Trustees still maintain the power to rescind the authority given to the students.

A Few Problems

At present, with the exception of a few mishaps, the new social policy is working quite well. Actually, the few "mishaps" were in reality failures of the social policy (i.e. several pledges ending up in the hospital after being allowed to return home drunk), but were quickly reconciled with proper punishment instituted.

Fraternities abolished at Amherst College by the Board of Trustees.

Lehigh students should feel proud that in the wake of other universities cracking down on social regulations the Board of Trustees felt them to be responsible and mature enough to go against the tide.

So, this is not a time to sit back and relax, but a time to be aware and alert of our fellow students so a few do not spoil it for the whole.

How long will these regulations be controlled by Lehigh students? Hopefully forever, since it is these rules and standards that have a direct impact on the students lives.

The Dorm Life

All in the Family

Dorm life is an experience that most of the student population has gone through during their freshman year. Living in a dorm takes a certain amount of talent and the skill is usually mastered by the student's sophomore year. For many, it is the first time they have ever shared a room with someone else and despite Residence Life's best intentions, the someone else genuinely has some rare and decidedly different living habits. The first thing to learn is how to compromise. For instance:

- he listens to loud, obnoxious music. You buy him a set of earphones
- He studies late at night and you like to get to sleep early. Hand him a flash light.
- He sleeps late in the morning and you're an early riser. Give him a Lone Ranger mask to wear.
- You find articles of clothing missing from your closet. Buy a lock.

Of course, this is just your roommate. In addition to him you have a floor full of people just like him. These dorm people have the following characteristics:

- They are the first ones in the shower in the morning and the last ones out. Result? You're late to class.
- They are the ones who keep forgetting to pay their hall dues. Result? You go broke.
- They are the ones who tempt you with a beer while you're attempting to study for an exam. Result? You have no will power, accept the beer, and fail the exam.

Gryphon: grif-en n. A fabulous animal, typically half eagle and half lion.

Moreover, there are rules involved in Dorm Living — certain facts of life that you must accept without question.

- Stay away from the lounge t.v. at 3:00 pm. This is when the General Hospital crew stampede in and you could easily get trampled.

- Hall meetings must be attended or people will forget who you are.
- There is always a line for the shower.
- There is always noise in the hallway — no matter what dorm you are in, there is either an uphill climb or the building is 3 miles from the rest of the campus.

So, with all these headaches why would anyone want to live in a dorm? Easy One, no matter how bad the problems get, you know that eventually you'll be able to laugh at them. Two, you have a person to talk to about any problems you might be experiencing; a gryphon which is a rather strange name to give a good person. Three, a comradeship exists in dorms that you'll find no where else on campus and out of this comradeship, true and lasting friendships grow.

Taylor College A New Kind of Family

"The Green Giant" planted himself in Lehigh's bountiful garden of dormitories and spread his seeds of success throughout the campus. Any students who doesn't know who "The Green Giant" of dormitories is should look at the site of what used to be known as Taylor Hall. That historic dorm was placed under a year of intense renovations and reopened in the fall of 1984 boasting its new color, a shade of green that is as hard to describe as it is to look at.

A New Kind of Dormitory

The dormitory, now known as Taylor College, changed not only in its appearance but also in its living concept. First, Taylor long had the reputation of housing only freshman males. This year Taylor admitted men and women from all four classes and even set aside two coed halls.

The community atmosphere that has been created is considered the most important factor in Taylor College's success.

Second, Taylor is the first dorm to initiate the residential college concept, which integrates students of diversified backgrounds through a variety of social, educational, and recreational programs. The results have been viewed as extremely successful by Residence Operations. The community atmosphere that has been created is considered the most important factor of its success.

Faculty Advisor

One of the most innovative features of Taylor College is the live-in faculty advisor who received first-hand experience living a dormitory. Professor J.R. Aronson, the advisor this year, helped organize events for the Taylor community. His time and effort and that of the whole Taylor family has made Taylor a special place to live.

Many students — sophomores through seniors — pack up their worldly possessions each year to embark on the journey off-campus. In doing so, they receive the opportunity to glance at what the "real world" may be like. Yes, there is a rent to pay — as well as gas, oil, electric, phone and water bills. More important, however, is that they have created a home away from home.

In their own houses or apartments, many students find the privacy they have longed for ever since they left home to come to Lehigh. What they wish to watch on tv is their decision — not a majority rules situation; what and when they eat is another decision wholly their own; and a bathroom wait has lowered from approximately 2 people to four or five.

Are their troubles in living off campus? Yes, of course. An occasional fuse will blow, bills may rest forgotten on the dining room table and off will go the phone service, and parties on campus may be heard about after they are over. These troubles, however, are far outweighed by the good experiences that come from the off campus alternative — sense of responsibility, close friends and home.

77 West Broad

As three young girls, they all met in Dravo
 The friendship from there continued to grow.
 On to M&M — rooms they did pick
 But, life at Lehigh was making them sick.
 Transferring to NYU — that's what they said
 To 77 West Broad they landed instead.
 Here life was blissful — a home they had made
 The Boyd, Rea & Derick, a weekly parade.
 Problems were few — no phone and no heat
 The hole in the ceiling, the noise in the street.

At a pub down below, they quickly acquired clout
 But after a while, Ripper's they wore out.
 Constantly blaring the television rays
 Soaps, "Who's The Boss" and "Happy Days."
 Peas, corn, potatoes, pasta and chicken
 They could stand there all night, munchin' & pickin'.
 They could never forget their Jeffs and Jims
 And Alison's fleeting two month whims.
 Their South Side pals were second to none
 Week nights for dinner were always fun.

Now they are leaving their humble abode
 They'll miss the good times, but not the work load.
 They're being tossed into the real world —
 still a bid giddy
 Off to Europe and New York City.
 What happens from here — they'll wait and see
 Alison running a corporation in Paris
 Paula analyzing Londoners at tea
 And, maybe Bones'll be anchoring for NBC.
 Well, Ali, P and Bones are off to a new start
 The memories they'll hold together as they sadly depart.

Learning about Lehigh

It's Monday evening — 7:00 pm — and dinner is merely a bad memory in Joe Freshman's mind. He's brand new at Lehigh and, although his books are calling to him — "Joe, Joe, you came here to study, didn't you? Remember, Joe, higher education?" — he honestly doesn't remember why he chose Lehigh. He still doesn't fit in — always managing to say and do just the wrong things. What was wrong with him?

Well, nothing is truly wrong with Joe — except for the irrevocable fact that he's a freshman and hasn't mastered campus life at Lehigh. So, along comes Stan Sophomore. He and his friends are heading for Linderland to pretend to study.

"Linderland?" Joe questions himself. "Is that the same as Linderman Library?"

Having nothing to lose, he packs up his books, trusty calculator, and pencils and heads for Linderman. Joe may not realize it just yet, but he's walking into another dimension of time and space — no, not the twilight zone — the Lehigh zone.

Linderman Library, sections of it affectionately known as the dungeon, the zoo and the stacks, happens to be the social center to discover what Lehigh is all about. By listening carefully, Joe may learn the following very important facts

Places to hang out — An individual never enters Linderman for the purpose of studying. If he simply must study (and a true student should only study the night before an exam — doing his homework regularly or worrying over tests makes him look like a geek — a subject to be discussed later) he would go to the cold blue land of Super-Mart and sit on the floor unless he happens to be one of the lucky few who manage to obtain a seat.

More places to hang out — Maginnes Hall for 11's at 10 — yes, coffee hour. The UC lounge at 3:00 pm is prime for GH viewing and during the Holiday season, this is also a must in order to cheer on the Grinch or to laugh when Frosty melts. In the early fall and spring, there are the infamous Lehigh beaches — Dravo lawn, M&M parking lot, the UC lawn and Saucou Valley.

On the weekend evenings — Incidentally, a Lehigh weekend begins on Wednesday with pubnights and ends Sunday morning with a hangover. Naturally, there are the fraternity and sorority parties; however, also included in this watering hole list are Manny's, Your Mother's Bloomers, and the Talley Ho.

Now, Joe freshman knows where to go — but, how to make conversation when he doesn't yet fully understand the long, lost and twisted tongue of a college student?

Lesson 1: When something is GOOD, say it's zeus, awesome, or happening.

Lesson 2: When something is BAD, say it's a bummer or beat.

Complicated Conversation: If someone has a gut, he is not talking about his physical status — he's commenting on an easy class. If someone gets hammered while pubbing, don't worry. No one pulled out a hammer and bludgeoned his head with it. He simply got drunk. If someone comments that he pulled an all-nighter and toiled — he stayed up all night and studied. If someone was blown away at a 4 o'clock — there was not a tornado during the late afternoon. He failed a 4 o'clock quiz. If someone is going to get a green suntan — he has not found a strange new beach. He's going to study in the computer room. If someone calls Joe a pencil-necked geek, he should become angry — he's just been insulted. If someone bagged a class and is psyched about it — it does not mean that he was excited about placing his class-campus on spikes is exceedingly dangerous.

In the spring — bright, loud flashy clothing is a must. Bermuda shorts are always appropriate. Of course, on Halloween all these rules are forgotten and anything goes.

Eating and drinking — Knowing the correct foods to eat and beverages to drink is considered extremely important to a college student. Pizza is a must — Domino's is the favorite, although Pizza Hut Pan Pizza is running a close second. For those with cast-iron stomachs, there is always Lehigh Pizza (the greasier the better). Other delicacies include greekers (cheap hot dogs with everything on them), perogies (a form of (potatoes) and any sort of munchie snack.

As for drinking, well, beer is the standard. If Joe doesn't develop a taste for it, he might as well resign himself to social ostracism. Mad dog, however, is also an accepted beverage for the die-hard drinkers and grain punch adds some variety to a rather monotonous choice in drinks. Cocktails are acceptable at IFCs or as the sun rises — but never ask for anything too com-

If you don't develop a taste for beer you might as well resign yourself to social ostracism.

room in a brown paper bag. He simply did not go to the class and was happy about it.

On occasion, Joe may feel left out of a conversation because he is unable to decipher the true meaning through all the slang — all he has to say is "awesome" or "I'm there" and he'll be able to fake his way through almost any topic. The key to speaking in slang lies in the parting statement. Never say "goodbye," always say "later."

Okay, now he can speak properly (?), but he doesn't know what to wear.

Clothing is essential. In the winter — duck-shoes for the feet or perhaps docksiders or sneakers (no, not the A&P variety). Rather, he should choose Nikes, Adidas or Pumas — laces untied of course. Jeans are always appropriate — Levis or Lees; please, Joe, let something get between you and your Calvins. In addition, three or four shirts should be worn together and topped off with a sweater. At least one collar should be upturned and these shirts should all have some little creature sewed to them — preferably an alligator, fox or a guy riding a horse. An important fact for girls to note — no high heels! Tottering about plicated. Remember, Lehigh students are mixing them.

Well, Joe is about ready to begin Lehigh Life. Like everyone else, he'll get up in the morning, wait for a shower, run to class five minutes late, bag his last one, watch the boob-tube, pretend to study at Linderman and check his mail three times a day.

The Greek Life

Life in a Fraternity or Sorority is more than living in a building better than your average dorm where the meals are far superior to that of the UC cafeteria. The difference rests in the meaning behind the words, brotherhood and sisterhood, which implies a bond of loyalty and friendship between the people with whom you live.

There are parties, clean-ups, pledging, meetings and many other activities involved in being a member of a fraternity or sorority. More important, however, are the ties formed that last a lifetime.

This year the Sigma Eta Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi celebrated its tenth year anniversary of its founding on the Lehigh Campus. Back then, the Founding Fathers were living in Stevens House. Since then, we have moved off campus to our own house, and have acquired an annex as well.

As our brotherhood has grown, so had AEPi's involvement in campus activities. Brothers participated in such clubs as Sailing and Tae Kwon Do and are also active in other student organizations such as The Brown & White and WLVR. In addition, we are involved with athletics, both varsity and intramurals.

We pride ourselves at always excelling academically. Of all fraternities on campus we are ranked number two. We feel a good combination between academics and extra curricular activities is the sign of a growing fraternity.

The Nu Chapter of Delta Phi has been at Lehigh for almost 100 years, and in that time, it has established a tradition of being an active and well diversified fraternity.

Our brothers are involved in a wide range of campus activities and organizations such as forum, The Brown & White, and In-fraternity Council. Academically, Delta Phi consistently attains a very respectable ranking among fraternities. Our intramural program has been improving greatly, and we look forward to outstanding achievements in all sports. We also have a number of brothers who compete on the intercollegiate level. Social life is certainly not lacking at Delta Phi, as our parties have become a highlight of Lehigh's social scene including our annual Volleyball Beach-Blast during Greek Week.

Delta Tau Delta Returns

"We the gentlemen of Delta Tau Delta will, through the strength of our brotherhood, maintain a commitment to excellence."

This pledge the 50 new brothers of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity took together and stated that, although building a fraternity on that doctrine might be a challenge, it was one which they had accepted with immeasurable enthusiasm.

It is this enthusiasm that defines the "New Delt" and each member has pledged his honor to the establishment of a strong and respected fraternity and committed himself to the overall success of Delta Tau Delta.

When they first began, they could be identified on campus by pledge badges and shirts. In the future, they intend to be recognized through service and sincere brotherhood.

Delta Upsilon

A grid of 50 black and white portraits of Delta Upsilon members, arranged in rows around a central emblem. The emblem features the text "Delta Upsilon" at the top, "LEHIGH CHAPTER" below it, the year "19 85" on either side, and "Lehigh University" at the bottom. The portraits are of men and women, mostly in suits or formal attire.

Delta Upsilon is a very unique fraternity at Lehigh. We at DU do not base the foundation of our brotherhood on secret rituals or hazing. We rely on our own system, a system of friendship and loyalty.

DU is a house rich in tradition and ability, both in academics and athletics. Several DU brothers hold honorable positions in the Tau Beta Pi Engineering Honor Society, while many brothers compete on the gridiron for Lehigh's nationally ranked football squad. In addition, we are very competitive in intramurals and, year in and year out, DU fields strong teams in basketball, football, boxing, and wrestling.

Being a DU brother is a rewarding experience that is looked on with much respect and admiration around campus. We have one of the newer houses on the hill and our social events — most notable being our annual Greek Week Beach Party — are not to be missed.

TEP is a diverse house with brothers participating in many extra curricular activities such as WLVR, The Brown & White, rugby, IM sports, the computer society, the drama club, ROTC, LUV, the scuba club, and various engineering societies and offices. Moreover, We have been ranked fourth academically out of fraternities for the past seven semesters.

Socially, our house is very active. Our social calander includes pubnites every Wednesday, band parties, imported beer parties, a Greek Week party, hotel parties, cocktails, and road trips to simply name a few.

TEP's Little Sister Organization is strong as well, with approximately 20 members and growing. Most notable in their events of this year, were the talent show and the Christmas Party.

The brothers to TEP attempt to stay involved with the Bethlehem community. This Christmas we invited approximately 30 underprivileged children from Wiley House to our house for a children's party, complete with Santa Claus and Christmas dinner.

Darren Queenan

By Mark Meagher

This young man held a dream all through out his high school career. The dream? To play in the NCAA tournament against Georgetown University. At only the end of his freshman year, Darren Queenan had the opportunity to see his dream change into reality.

Past Fame

Darren's successful basketball career began in high school where he helped to guide his team to the Pennsylvania district 1 championship and the semi-finals of the state tournament in his senior year. In addition, that year he was named to the First Team All-Philadelphia and Second Team Pennsylvania by the Mid-Atlantic Sports Service.

Lehigh is a "close-knit team."

Choosing the right school

As high school graduation neared, Darren narrowed down his choice of colleges to Lehigh and rival Lafayette. He remarks, "The deciding factor was that Coach Snyder stressed academics and the Lafayette coach didn't." Thus, he and his family decided that Lehigh would be the better choice.

Adjusting to Lehigh's team

Adjustment to college basketball at Lehigh was not that easy for Darren. Used to playing before 1,000 fans, he was naturally disappointed that Lehigh games drew only 100 in the early season. Moreover, he entered a program that was in the rebuilding stages from a championship team.

Once the season got underway, however, Darren felt right at home. He began to break many Lehigh records as only a Rookie. Among them include most points scored at Stabler Arena: 33 points in the Hofstra game; and most points scored in one season by a Lehigh player; 546 points.

Even though Lehigh was in a rebuilding season, Darren noted that "they are a close-knit team. When we started losing, we were able to sit down and think things out." This strategy began to pay off as the season progressed.

The ECC Tournament

Lehigh entered the East Coast Conference tournament as an underdog. They opened up play against a team that previously defeated them: Drexel. This game, Darren said, "was the key."

With their confidence in tact they got by Hofstra in the semi-finals only to meet up against Bucknell, the tournament number one seeded team. Even though they had lost twice to them during regular season, Lehigh was to pull out a 76-74 overtime victory to clinch the ECC Championship.

This win signified Lehigh's first trip to the NCAA tournament. With their poor record, however, they drew nationally ranked #1 Georgetown as their first round game.

The Georgetown Game

Playing against Georgetown and Patrick Ewing was a dream come true for Darren. He noted, "You could pick up every paper and see Lehigh's name."

"The media was more intimidating than actually playing against Georgetown," Darren commented. He was assigned Patrick Ewing and noted his domination almost immediately.

Georgetown quickly took the lead, but in the end Lehigh only lost by a score of 68-43, beating the 30 point spread. In the Second half, however, Lehigh did manage to out-score Georgetown 32-29 with all their first string players in the game.

Darren takes pride that he is helping to "build a strong basketball program."

Darren's future at Lehigh

Darren now faces three more years at Lehigh. He already earned several honors: Rookie of the year in the ECC, First Team All-Conference, and Honorable Mention All-American.

Darren has set several goals for himself and the team for his remaining years. Among them: break .500 and make the NCAA tournament all three years and to continue to lead the conference in scoring (his ECC leading total was 18.2 points per game.)

Darren takes pride in the fact that he is helping to "build a strong basketball program" and looks forward to continuing in his engineering studies.

The Georgetown Battle

Early Season of Success Switched to Failure

By Marty Horn

Coming off an impressive 8-3 season in 1983, the Engineer football squad entered its second century of competition with hopes of continued success in 1984. But early season success was quickly turned to failure after the Engineers were their share 4-1 midseason record fall steadily to 5-6, culminating with defeat at the hands of arch rival Lafayette in the season finale.

Though the season ended in disappointment, out of the wreckage could be salvaged many bright spots:

"Using the 'shot gun,' quarterback Marty Horn riddled UMass for a school record 386 yards"

Engineers' Successful Start

The gridgers began their '84 season with a 21-14 victory over the University of Massachusetts. Using the newly installed 'shot gun' as an additional passing weapon, junior quarterback Marty Horn riddled the UMass secondary for a school record 386 yards while completing 28 of 50 passes. On the receiving end, junior split-ends Rennie Benn and Todd Melton caught nine and five passes respectively.

On a cold and rainy afternoon in Storrs, Connecticut, the Engineers rode the toe of junior place-kicker Dave Melick, who booted a 45-yard field goal with no time remaining on the scoreboard clock, to give the Brown and White a 10-7 victory.

Home Opener

Sporting a 2-0 record, the gridgers took on Colgate University at Taylor Stadium for the home opener. In a wild 40-35 shoot-out, the Engineers met defeat for the first time of the season. Senior quarterback Tony Semler completed 15 of 28 passes for 201 yards and two touchdowns while rushing for an additional 22 yards in a strong effort.

The Engineers bounced back the following week with a 46-6 wipe out of the Blue Hens of Delaware.

Next stop for the gridgers was Northeastern University in Boston. After falling behind 14-13 in the third quarter, the Engineers turned it on and posted a 25-14 score over the Huskies. In the victory, Rennie Benn caught 10 passes for 158 yards and three touchdowns.

Gridgers' Record Slips

Traveling to Annapolis, Maryland to face the United States Naval Academy, the Engineers watched their season record fall to 4-2 as the Division I Midshipmen beat the Brown and White, 31-14.

From here, the Engineers returned home to take on nationally ranked University of New Hampshire. But the gridgers balked, missing key scoring opportunities enroute to a 34-14 defeat.

Following the loss to UNH, the gridgers record slipped even further into the galleys with a 24-16 defeat at the hands of sixth-ranked University of Rhode Island.

The Engineer schedule refused to lighten up as the gridgers traveled to William and Mary and played before a sell-out homecoming crowd of 20,000, only to be scalped by the Indians, 24-10. Freshman tailback Kevin Stransberry provided Engineer fans with the longest run of the season; a 25-yard burst for a first down. Ellow led the defense with 13 tackles.

Finally the Engineers broke their winless skid with a 21-15 victory over Bucknell University. Pete Schreck, Doug Eriz, and Horn scored touchdowns as a stingy defense led by Marc Thomas' block of a Bison punt stifled the visitors throughout the afternoon.

120th Meeting At Lafayette

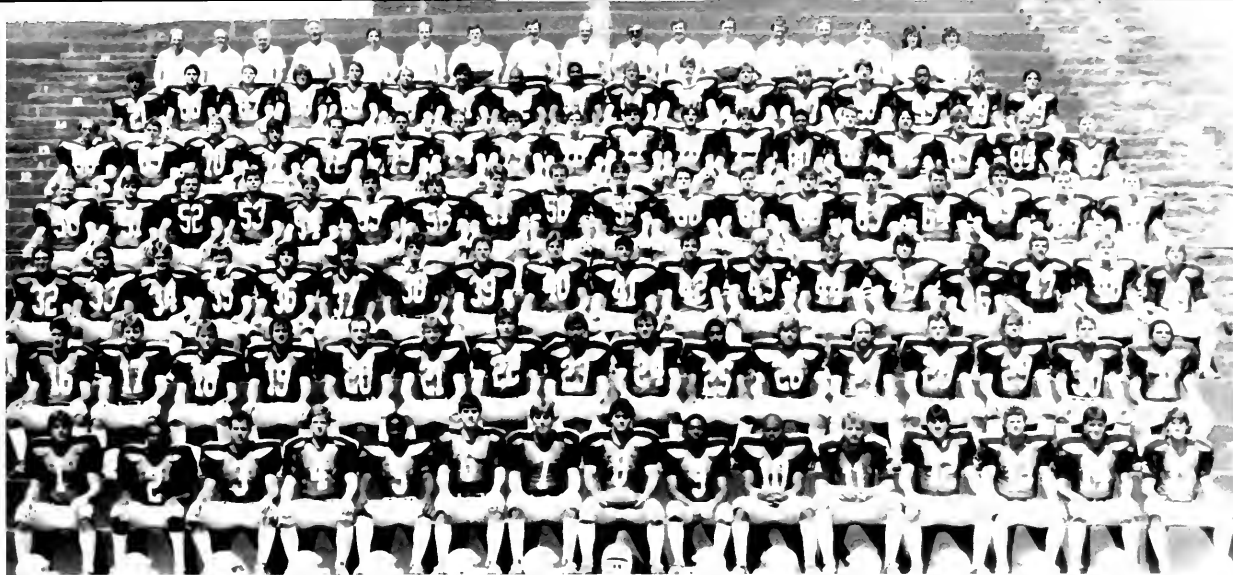

With their record at 5-5, the Brown and White sought to finish on a winning note as they traveled to Easton to meet the Lafayette Leopards in the 120th meeting between the rivals. It was not to be for the Engineers. Missing two early scoring opportunities, Lehigh lost momentum to the Leopards who went on to post a 28-7 finish.

Through the 1984 Engineer football team finished with a disappointing 5-6 record, many bright spots will be returning in 1985. The passing combination of Marty Horn and All-American Rennie Benn, an offensive line led by All-American Dave Whitehead, a defense led by All-American Wes Wallon, and a solid supporting cast, should give the Engineers the firepower they need to get back on the winning track.

Soccer Team Enjoys Best Record in Six Years

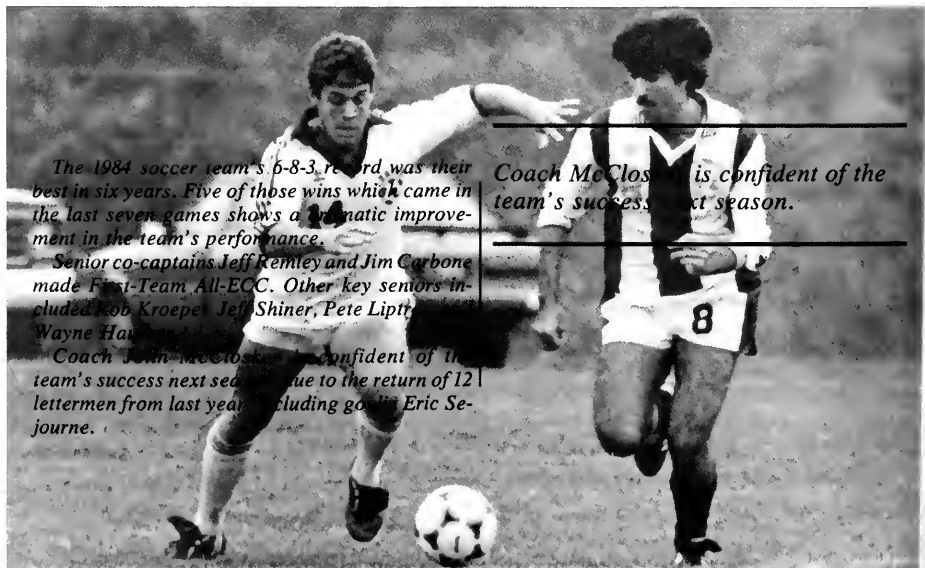

By Doug Brogowski

The 1984 soccer team's 6-8-3 record was their best in six years. Five of those wins which came in the last seven games shows a dramatic improvement in the team's performance.

Senior co-captains Jeff Remley and Jim Carbone made First-Team All-ECC. Other key seniors included Bob Kroepel, Jeff Shiner, Pete Lipton, and Wayne Hausser.

Coach John McCloskey is confident of the team's success next season due to the return of 12 lettermen from last year, including goalies Eric Sejourne.

Field Hockey Rushes to a Successful Season

By Nicola Pugliese

The field hockey team had a successful season under Coach Judy Baxter. Although it started slowly with a loss and a tie, the season's accomplishments under the guidance of captains Karyn Yost and Sue Coursen.

A demanding schedule

The schedule of games was very demanding — Lehigh playing 17 of the 20 Division I hockey teams — however, despite this challenging competition, the stickers won the East Coast Conference, the second year that they have done so.

Stars at this year's All-American Game and Patti Lee were elected to the All-American Team. Karyn Yost was also named a regional All-American, with honors. The captains being given to Cheryl Miller and Sue Coursen. Coach Baxter commented that she was extremely pleased with the performance of the team.

Cross Country's Record a Miracle

By Martin Finnegan

Senior Captain Joe McVeigh, and sophomore Ed Kehoe. Senior Kevin Murphy proved himself to be quite reliable in the fourth man position and Andy Bennett showed as the consistent fifth scorer.

The Season's Highlights

The highlights of the 1984 season were the squad's 18th straight defeat of Lafayette, and Lehigh's invitational, the Paul Short Memorial Run.

Predictions for the future

Because the team will be losing some senior talent at the end of the season, Coach Covert hopes for a lot of effort and improvement on the part of his younger runners. He also hopes for a good recruitment in next year's freshmen.

Lehigh Men's Cross Country team's record of 6 and 4 was a minor miracle according to Coach Covert. Early in the season, the team had planned to take the Conference Championship, but after losing two of its top five runners to illness, the team was skeptical of even winning a meet.

Top Athletes

This year's top athletic was sophomore, John Marian. An asset to the team, Marian won four races during the season and finished second in the conference. The number two position was a trade-off between

The Young Grapplers Faced a Rough Season

By Martin Finnegan

Lehigh's 1984-1985 wrestling season started with the trials in Grace Hall which produced a team that was young and inexperienced, but hopeful of the best. The Lehigh grapplers were led by Head Coach Thad Turner and Captain Paul Diekel.

Sheridan Tournament

The season got underway with the Sheridan Tournament held at Stabler Arena. Lehigh took second place in this event with the help of Chris Mears, Peter Yozzo, and Paul Diekel.

In the match, the Engineers challenged Wilkes College whom they defeated 25-23. Lehigh was not so lucky, however, in the following Iowa match in which they lost 44-

Mat-Town USA

Next on the schedule was the Lock Haven

Tournament, also known as the Mat-Town USA Tournament. Out of the eleven schools that competed, Lehigh came away second in the tournament with wins by Peter Yozzo and Captain Paul Diekel.

Engineers Hit a Setback

In January, the Engineers hit a setback in the season with six straight losses to Pittsburgh, Iowa State, Michigan, Wisconsin, Cleveland State, and Penn State. The squad came back strong though, and pinned the Black Knights of Army in a 25-17 match.

Lehigh continued by defeating the Big Red of Cornell with an impressive 38-7 victory.

In their last away match, the Engineers defeated Maryland 27-20. Next, the grapplers beat Navy for their last dual meet of the season. Lehigh finished their schedule with two close losses to Syracuse and Temple.

Stars of the Team Shine

Lehigh ended its season on a positive note. At the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Championships at Franklin and Marshall, five Engineers qualified for the nationals. Peter Yozzo, Tom Toggas, and Paul Diekel took firsts while Brian Yano and Chris Mears finished with thirds.

At the NCAA Championships at Oklahoma City, the Engineers finished ninth overall with two third place wins by Peter Yozzo and Paul Diekel.

Men's Basketball

Young Engineers Defy All Odds

By Ron Ticho

It turned out to be an exciting season for the young Engineers. Under the guidance of second-year head coach Tom Schneider, the Brown and White jumped out to an early 5-1 start in the East Coast Conference (ECC), and captured the crown in the ECC Tournament and the automatic bid to the NCAAs.

Lehigh finished with an overall record of 12-19, 9-8 in conference play, and managed to pull off the biggest upset in ECC history.

Queenan Shatters Records

Much of this year's success is due to the arrival of freshman Daren Queenan. Considered one of Lehigh's greatest

'The Georgetown game was merely a finish to what had turned out to be an exciting season for the young Engineers.'

athletes, Queenan shattered records as if they didn't exist at all: points scored in a season (546); field goals made (225); Lehigh basketball's first All-American selection and ECC Rookie-of-the-Year and first-team honoree. His scoring average of 18.2 was Lehigh's highest since 1969.

Overshadowed by much of the publicity was the fantastic season sophomore Mike Polaha had. Picking up where he left off freshman year, Polaha averaged 15.6 points per contest, and was consistently ranked in the top 25 in the nation for free throw shooting.

Wickman Guides Engineers

Exciting seasons such as this, however, has come to a close for Lehigh's only senior and two-year captain, Paul Wickman. Wickman finished his final campaign averaged just under eight points and seven rebounds per game. It was his leadership which helped guide this young squad to the NCAA tournament.

A Talented, Young Team

Lehigh's 12-19 record was deceiving. They lost ten games by six points or less — a sign of a young team. They got off to a flying start with an 82-48 crushing of East Stroudsburg, and thrilled fans with a 83-74 triumph over Wagner College in their final home contest before winter break.

While students went away for vacation, however, the Engineers did not. Despite tournament losses in Arizona and Milwaukee, the Engineers were victorious in five of eight contests of which four were ECC battles. Following an exciting 93-75 thrashing of Hofstra, Lehigh hosted Bucknell to decide who would gain sole possession of first place in the ECC. However, while the some 2000 Lehigh fans cheered on the Brown and White, the cagers fell short, dropping a 67-61 decision to the Bisons. It was the start of a six-game mid-season skid for the Engineers.

ECC Victory

In their final regular season contest, Drexel beat the Engineers, 70-69, revenging an earlier one-point Lehigh victory in Philadelphia. Lehigh, however, would be the last to laugh, knocking off the Dragons in the first round of the ECC tournament, 58-56. The Engineers went on to defeat Hofstra, 72-68, and then beat Bucknell in the final, 76-74 in overtime.

The Georgetown game and the NCAA tournament is history. That one event has garnered more publicity than any other sporting event in the history of the University.

John S. Kelly, a 1927 graduate of Lehigh, put it best in a letter to Lehigh's public information office. "The boys worked their hearts out to make it to the finals... they deserved it and played because they loved the game. GOD bless them."

"Picked by ECC coaches in pre-season poll to finish last, the Engineers defied all odds and brought home Lehigh's first ECC basketball championship."

Coach Tom Schneider

My Uncle's Big Game

The papers had them beaten right from the start.
What they didn't know, is this team's got heart.
They said we really didn't belong,
We were here to show them that they were wrong.
As my sign proclaimed "The Little Engineers That Could,"
In the back of my mind I was hoping they would.
I don't know why we paid for these seats,
After just a few minutes, we'd be more on our feet.
As my uncle went up high with the ball,
Ewing was waiting, big as a wall.
As Jackson and Wingate executed the press,
It was evident, for my uncle, there would be no rest.
The first half was over, I felt such fear,
The points were so few, so very mere.
We came so far, drove so long for this game,
Why, oh why, are they playing so lame?
The second half's starting, we'll never say die,
We're just going to give it that old college try.
As they came out from the locker room, the cheers were loud,
And I was one of them, this Lehigh crowd.
Here he comes again, heading for the basket,
Another two points — swish — nothing but net.
There he goes driving down the lane,
I closed my eyes and thought, "No, you're insane."
But the basket was good, as he hit the floor,
A foul was called, as he tries for one more.

When they'd tried to set Darren up for the dunk,
Perry McDonald was there, and all chances were sunk.
The whole Civic Center shook from the roar,
Whenever one of the engineers would score.
As time was running out, the game was almost done,
My uncle came out to a standing ovation.
As I looke around, I saw something I hadn't seen in years,
My father was watching with his eyes full of tears.
I kept watching my dad, as he hugged my mother,
Bursting with pride, this was his baby brother.
As his points were added, the tally was twenty,
A feat not matched by all that many.
As we waited for all the showering to be done,
Out of the locker room they came, one by one.
My brother and I made our way down the steps,
To congratulate this team we think is the best.
But the guard stopped us, "This is reserved for the team,"
When a familiar voice said, "It's o.k., they're with me."
Coach Tom Schneider had every reason to beam,
After the second half performance of this young team.
So here's to you . . .
Wick, Darren, Michael A. and Don,
Vernon, Kenny, Tim, and Ron.
They won't soon forget that you were here,
After all we won't let them, we'll be back next year.

Women's Basketball

A Quietly Successful Season

By Doug Brogowski

The 1984-85 version of the Lehigh women's basketball team was like Rodney Dangerfield — they got no respect. Overshadowed by the men's team's winning of the ECC championship and subsequent nationally televised game against number one ranked Georgetown, the women's team quietly had a fantastic season.

It was a season in which, under Head

Overshadowed by the men's team, the women's team quietly had a fantastic season.

Coach Muffet McGraw, the team compiled a 20-8 record and made it as far as the ECC championship game. It was a season that saw the team jump off to a 10-0 record to give them their best start ever. In addition, it was a season that, combined with the men's team, will hopefully start the Lehigh basketball program in a positive direction.

Leading players

The Lady Engineers were led by junior guard Shawn Steward, who led the team in points per game (14.5), free throw percentage (79%), assists (119), steals (68), and overall scoring (376 points). Other key players were junior forward Liz Feeley (11.9 ppg. and the team's leading rebounder), senior guard Patt Cutting (3.0 ppg. and 25 steals), junior center Ellen Silver (11.7 ppg. and 8.5 rebounds per game), and junior guard Cathy Englebert (73% free throw % and 9.9 ppg.). Up and coming players include sophomore Cathy Laydon and freshman Mary Kush.

A few highlights

Among the team's 19 wins this season were some overwhelming blowouts. Early on in the season, when they won 10 in a row, their closest game was a 75-60 win over Cornell. They won one game by 35 points, 76-41 over Marywood College. Their toughest win was a 64-62 squeaker over Rider.

After completing the regular season with an 18-7 record, the Lady Engineers beat Rider 75-61, and then defeated forever tough Delaware 69-61. This brought them to the ECC championship game, where they lost to Lafayette 72-52.

The future looks promising

Despite the loss, the season was a good one, and one that left a positive outlook for the future. As Coach McGraw put it: "I think we've started a real good program here. That junior class has really built the foundation for women's basketball at Lehigh and we hope to improve and grow on that and, hopefully, be one of the teams to beat in the conference each year."

Softball Team Learns to Appreciate Victory

By Mary Ellen Villegas

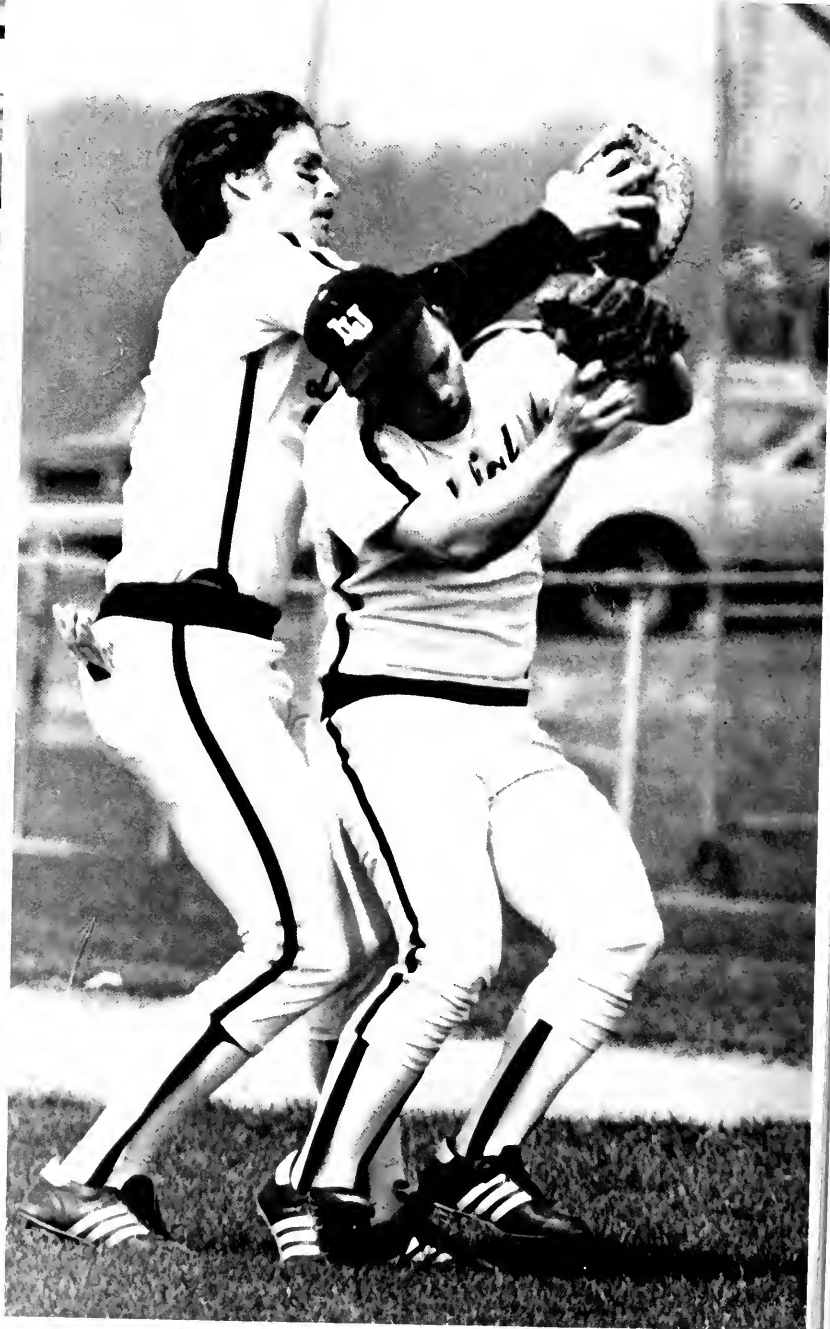

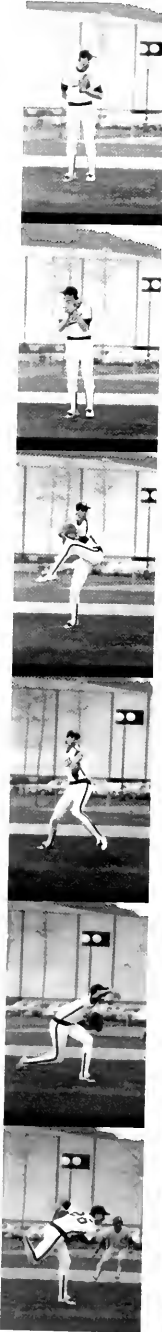

Although the season was rather dim for the girls, the Lehigh's Women's softball team still had fun playing. The few games they did win made them really appreciate the thrill of victory.

Stars that shine

Leading the team was senior captain Amy Regan, Kathy Hynes (.239; 16-for-67), Marlena Pluta (.226; 12-for-53), and MVP Amy Austin (.203; 14-for-69). Coach McGraw hopes that the 1986 season will perk up and perhaps be a winning season.

Experiencing Victory and Defeat

*Not in the clamor of the crowded street,
Not in the shouts and the plaudits of the throng,
But in ourselves, are triumph and defeat.*

Live always, my friend, as if there is world enough and time enough.

Seniors

Now this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end. But it is, perhaps, the end of the beginning.

— Winston Churchill

What is the one thing you've been dying to know, but were afraid to ask?

- Will I graduate?*
- Does Lehigh ever give anyone a break?*
- Have any of the campus cops finished high school?*
- Are there any girls on campus that like me?*
- What's a greeker, anyway?*
- Is Pi Lam really dry?*
- Is my Lehigh diploma worth $50,000?*
- Does President Likins wear silk shorts?*
- Where did the Health Center doctors receive their de-grees?*
- What is true love?*
- How many kegs are consumed in a year?*
- Where do babies come from?*
- Where does Lehigh get the nerve to raise tuition almost $1,000 every year?*
- What really is the red and green medicine the health center gives you?*
- Who puts together the Epitome?*

What is the most embarrassing thing that happened to a professor while he/she was teaching?

- Professor Hanz rolled down the stairs of Neville I.
- The professor forgot that the square root of 4 equals 2.
- Professor Sussking pulled down the blackboard in Packard 416 and revealed a playboy centerfold taped to the wall.
- A singing gorilla delivered birthday balloons to him sent by his wife.
- Professor Johnson wrote a lengthy equation on the board and when he finished a large black dog went up to him to show him what he thought of the lecture — he threw up on the floor at his feet.
- She fell over a chair and into the chalk board.
- Professor Wilansky (math 44) dozed off during a lecture.
- He started lecturing, lost his train of thought and stood in front of the class completely dumbfounded.
- Two, rather amorous, dogs had sex in front of Professor Aronson.
- The Professor's fly was open for an entire lecture.

What is the longest time you have spent in line at Lehigh and where was this line?

- 1 hour — Bursars' Office*
- ½ hour — first half of the Lehigh-Lafayette game.*
- 2 hours — Add-drop line at the Registrar's Office.*
- 2½ hours — Bookstore freshman year, when I didn't know to go at 5:00pm.*
- 45 minutes — Sigs to get a beer.*
- 12 hours — Stabler Arena ticket office to get tickets to see Billy Joel.*
- 45 minutes at the First Valley Bank in the UC.*
- 30 minutes — waiting for a special dinner at Rathbone (it wasn't worth it).*
- ½ hours — to get my ID stamped.*
- 1 hour — in the Bookstore to get tickets for the Adam Ant concert.*
- 2 hours — to pick up my schedule in Packard.*

What is the most ridiculous question you have ever seen on a test?

- What's the name of Long Ranger's best friend?
- Mkt 319 - What time did we arrive back from Washington divided by munchie stops?
- The author of your text book is _____ (yes, I got it wrong).
- Name? (3 points)
- What is your favorite invertebrate animal and why?
- Describe the first half of the course.
- What is the title of your text book?
- EVERY QUESTION on the Finance 225 final.
- What kind of trees did they plant in New York in 1926?
- Who's going to win the NHL Stanley Cup?
- What is your name and why are you here?
- Describe BRIEFLY something totally abstract.
- Who was Whitey Whitney? (Beaver Cleaver's best friend).
- What is a binkwhat and how is it manufactured?
- What's a test?

What gift should our class give to Lehigh?

- A Hallmark "Get Well Card" for Greek Week
- New band uniforms — and a new band to go with them
- Money to modernize Taylor Gym
- Stock in Miller Beer
- A REAL student union
- A bulldozer to level all the "art" on campus
- An Arts Center
- A student pub
- An escalator through campus
- Basketball Scholarships
- A 24 hour liquor store in the UC
- Scholarships — so that others less fortunate can experience what we have
- Explosives for Christmas-Saucon

If you could choose all over again, would you attend Lehigh?

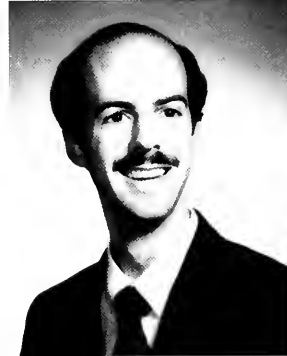

- Definitely*
- Definitely, not*
- Yes, but I'd take it less seriously*
- Maybe*
- For what?*
- No, I wouldn't be an Engineer*
- I'm not so sure*
- If Lincoln could do it all over again, would he have gone to the theater?*
- Probably*
- Sure, why not?*
- Only for Lehigh-Lafayette Weekend and Greek Week*
- Yes and no. Yes, because I love it here and no, because other schools would be better for my major*
- Not in a million years*
- Probably, I wasn't accepted anywhere else*
- Hell No!*
- YES!*

What are you going to do with your diploma?

- Give it to my Dad — he paid for it*
- Pawn it*
- Give it away*
- Does the term "place mat" mean anything to anybody?*
- Frame it!*
- Save it — it will be the only worth while thing I receive from Lehigh*
- Shove it in a drawer*
- Undecided*
- Put it in the basement with all my Kindergarten papers*
- Put it in a box under my bed*
- Line my bird cage with it*
- Put it in the attic with the rest of the useless relics*
- Hang it next to my punt letters*
- Burn it!*
- Keep it in a closet only to discover it 20 years later*
- Donate it to charity*
- Tack it on the wall*
- Take it out for an evening of dinner and dancing*

What unusual study habits do you have?

- Study habits? I'm better at the procrastinating habits
- I must wear my thinking cap — Mickey Mouse ears!
- I answer stupid surveys like this instead of studying
- I Overdose on ice cream and M&Ms
- I try not to make a habit of studying
- The semi-annual 2 minute study fest
- Study in bed
- Study 10 minutes — study break 20 minutes
- Drinking heavily (hey, it works)
- I wait to study an hour before the test only to realize that it's hopeless
- I study in the buff
- Study for an exam with headphones on and the stereo playing very loud
- Watching tv with the book closed
- I close my eyes
- Clap loudly and stand on my chair

The Class of 1985

*Do you know where you're going to?
Do you like the things that life is showing you?
Where are you going to, do you know?*

*Do you get what you're hoping for?
When you look behind you, there's no open door.
What are you hoping for?
Do you know?*

*Once we were standing still in time,
Chasing the fantasies that filled our minds.*

*Do you know where you're going to?
Do you like the things that life is showing you?
Where are you going to?
Do you know?*

We have spent much of our time in these past four years attempting to answer the questions our professors placed before us. Sometimes we could find no answers at all—other times, we found more than one. Now comes the time to ask our own questions of ourselves. May each of us find an answer that will satisfy.

Lehigh

Our Year in Review

By Mark Meagher

Fall — 1984

Marking the start of a new Lehigh year, the Delta Tau Delta fraternity returned to campus after a three year suspension. Plans for its re-colonization began early in the fall and possible pledges were being sought.

While Deltas were busy receiving a new face, Pi Lambda Phi lost theirs when social and disciplinary sanctions were placed on them. The Disciplinary Committee, chaired by Dean Cohen, decided after hearings on the matter that, among other penalties, no alcohol would be allowed on their premises and no alcohol would be permitted at any rush functions until the end of the year. Although worried that this would deter freshmen from pledging Pi Lam, the brothers still managed to attract a good size pledge class.

On the better side of Greek Life, Kappa Alpha Theta became the newest of Lehigh's sororities. The group colonized in October.

While visions of Thanksgiving Turkeys danced in many students' heads, President Peter Likins was busy approving Forum XV's proposal to abolish the old social regulations. These new regulations gave the students the power to regulate parties and social gatherings where alcohol would be present.

In mid November Lehigh was honored with visits from two dignitaries from two vastly different fields — one, entertainment and the other, peace.

Bishop Tu Tu, having just recently had the Nobel Peace Prize bestowed on him, and, Bill Cosby, now star of his own top-rated tv situation comedy show came to speak to the Lehigh students.

Not long after, students began gearing for the traditional Lehigh-Lafayette weekend. In the midst of all this excitement, Ethan Felson and Cara Slutter made their announcement of the beginning of an administration supported group they were co-organizing. Basically, the group was for homosexual and bisexual students. It contains counseling oriented groups to aid students with problems they may encounter by being homosexual. The group's main goal was to address the problem of self affirmation among the gay community.

After the initial furor the new gay club caused among students and faculty, many disregarded the controversy in order to concentrate on the upcoming battle against the Leopards.

With their record at 5-5, the Brown and White sought to finish on a winning note as they traveled to Easton to meet the Lafayette Leopards in the 120th meeting between the rivals. It was not to be for the Engineers. Missing two early scoring opportunities, Lehigh lost momentum to the Leopards who went on to post a 28-7 finish.

Winter — 1984-85

Finals came and went in a dismal week of late night cramming and early morning coffee. Students left for home to celebrate the holiday season and a completion of yet another semester.

More regulations assaulted the Hill. The IFC approved a decision to check for LU student ID's at parties. This resulted from many town people racing up the hill in search of free beer and a few fights. The policy, however, received mixed reactions and eventually was stopped.

The first trial weekend for the new social policy arrived and some students, unfortunately, caused its failure. As a result of fraternity rush parties, four freshmen were treated for over consumption of alcohol.

To add insult to injury, later on that same month, Sigma Alpha Mu, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Beta Theta Pi fraternities were found guilty of violating

Delta Tau Delta returns to campus.

University social policy and recklessly endangering some of their pledges with abuse of alcohol on Bid Day.

On the sports scene, early in March, Lehigh University's wrestling team captured 25th EIWA wrestling championship, crowning three individual champions.

After a record of 5 wins and 9 losses, Lehigh finished 9th in the nation in wrestling. Pete Yozzo and Paul Dickel set a school record for most wins at 29.

To the delight of the campus community, Lehigh University's men's basketball team beat Bucknell 76-74 in overtime to capture the ECC crown and qualify for the NCAA tournament.

Later that month, Lehigh went against top seeded Georgetown in the NCS.AA tournament. Although bowing to the Hoyas 68-43, the school was able to gain recognition and respect by outplaying Georgetown in the first half of the game.

Spring — 1985

Hopping over to student government, Forum eliminated the all-night study Lounge in Neville Auditorium due to vandalism. Many late night studiers bemoaned the decision and went in search of other possible hide outs.

Beer drinking in the classrooms and sunrise cocktails heralded in another Greek Week at Lehigh. More aspersions were cast on the Greek community, however, as Pi Lambda Phi's Greek Week banner was considered offensive and racist.

Early in May, Delta Sigma Phi fraternity was found guilty of hazing charges. IFC recommended the dissolution of the fraternity and the decision was made to ban them from the Hill for three years.

In women's sports, Lehigh's women's tennis team finished the year at 19-2, to capture the ECC championship. In the meantime, Lehigh University's women's lacrosse team captured its first ECC championship by defeating Delaware 21-7. They finished the season with a 13-3 record and ranked 7th in the nation.

Provost Arthur Humphrey resigns; but will stay on to teach.

On a sad note, Lehigh's community mourned the decisions of three members of the administration to leave their posts. Robert Cohen, Associate Dean of Students, announced he will resign effective July 1, 1986. Registrar James Wagner announced that he will take early retirement after 36 years of service to the University. Provost Arthur Humphrey announced his resignation; however, he will stay on as a full Professor of Engineering.

Finally, in June, best selling novelist, John Irving, delivered the 117th commencement address to graduating seniors. Among his works include Setting Free the Bear and The World According to Garp.

Scandalizing parents and students alike, the Graduation ceremony was stopped midway while Peter Likins instructed the overzealous Business College students to curb the champagne uncorking during the graduation process.

Graduation brought summer break for some, the beginning of a new life for others, and for all, a year fraught with tension and worry, laughter and tears, good times and bad.

Bethlehem

a last look

Steel town. City of bridges, railroad tracks and South Side decay, populated by the proverbial melting pot.

It's a workingman's town. Row houses, dingy bars. The sweat of laborers can be seen and smelled every day in the puffing of the steel mill. It was thought to run forever, yet time and technology has nearly brought it to a halt. Industrial jungle.

Beyond the mill, there is history here. The spirits of those first Moravian settlers seem to linger in the earth, in the air and in the churches. Historic Bethlehem's cobble stone streets wind along renovated buildings and lamp posts of days long past.

Over the mountain, there is serenity. The valley is young, fresh with natural beauty. It is the needed sanctuary from the jungle.

In the winter, especially December, it is magical—crystal snow, lights and The Star—sparkle in the dark, chilled night air.

Bethlehem. It was strange to most of us at first, dark and foreboding with its steel and workingmen. Perhaps now we see it differently. Home for four years, it somehow taught us, intangibly, about life.

As we leave, a part of Bethlehem and the lessons learned here will surely follow with us—always.

Lehigh Alumni Clubs

Lehigh camaraderie doesn't end with the last graduation party. There are 61 Lehigh Clubs, and one is probably near you. Like sports? Chances are your club will attend a Lehigh sports event. You can welcome future alumni at freshmen send-offs, share your real-world expertise with under-graduates or broaden your cultural horizons by hearing interesting speakers or touring local places of interest. Many clubs donate some of the dues money to worthy University causes and help out in other ways, such as recruiting and admissions work. The important thing is having fun and being active.

As I walk out of this office for the last time, I realize that this is my real graduation. I may not be wearing a black robe, nor listening to speeches about the future, nor collecting a piece of paper to prove how hard I worked, nor is my family here grinning madly with pride; but, now I am graduating. The yearbook is Lehigh to me — I know the University through this book — and it means more to me than that diploma. I'll miss that dingy little office in the basement of the UC more than any other place on campus. I'll miss the people who worked on it with me more than anyone else I have met in my four years here.

My time spent on The Epitome was, in fact, the best of times and the worst of times — at the same time.

I have eagerly anticipated writing this column. This was to be my ultimate reward for all the hours of editorial and emotional toil I would put into the making of this book — my chance to echo my esteemed predecessors by telling the world how hard I had worked and how well I had survived all the challenges. Except, I don't want to use this column to pat myself on the back for the great job I did — I'm not sure I did so great a job and I didn't do it alone. I will use this column, therefore, to say thank you to those who helped get this edition of the Epitome into print.

These people are the ones who stood beside me and worked; those that didn't leave me holding the bag, as it t'were; people who cared; who helped; and who listened — even when what I had to say wasn't worth listening to.

First, the Journalism Department has been invaluable. Professor Robert Sullivan, always ready with an encouraging word and a smile, served as their leader. Next came Professor Sharon Friedman, our fearless advisor, who paid me the ultimate compliment. She let me know that she was there with advice should I need it, while, at the same time, giving me the freedom I needed to put this book together. In the background, Professor Walter Trimble made himself available with helpful photo tips for the photography staff as well as put up with our presence in the Brown and White dark room. Last, but certainly not least, Ruth Mathis — the secretary who weathered every conceivable storm; from irate parents on the phone to even more irate students in front of her desk. She heard every problem that occurred in our office with a sympathetic ear. In addition to these talented people, there was Teresa who kept our office clean and, with her charm, kept smiles on our faces.

Lending encouragement and support was the crew at Merin Studios. Richie, Rosemary and, of course, Donna and Steve who had to put up with me for a second year. How do you guys do it?

Now, for the Epitome staff . . .

Allison Case. Business Manager. Friend. Confident. Sounding board. How she managed to keep this book out of bankruptcy is a mystery to me. Her desk is empty now — she's off to bigger and better things; but I can still see her in this office — hunched over the IBM computer's madly typing or on the phone arguing with the Controller's Office. Nobody could have done it with more style AI, and I'm sure no one ever has.

Adam Sevel. Photography Editor. Amazingly gifted photographer. Buddy. The one who could make me laugh when all I wanted to do was give up and cry. He stayed during part of the summer to finish up some unfinished business (as there always is); and, even though he had pretended all throughout the year he wouldn't stay, I knew he would. That's the kind of person he is.

Those two, plus myself, were the crux of the Epitome. There are certain staff members, however, who deserve special mention.

Lisa Desnoyers, who made walking into the office a pleasure because she could make us all laugh. John Missimer and Jeff Ruser — the infamous duo — who put up with my constant complaining and still managed to get their respective jobs done. Steve Switaj, the poor boy who didn't know what he was getting into when he offered to take a few pictures for the Epitome. Patty Boustany and Renee Chan, the two photographers who worked incredibly hard running all over campus to take group shots. Mary Ellen Villegas, who must have cracked a whip over the copy staff to get everything in as she did. Finally, Howard Herrera, who stayed through the summer with me to make sure the book got completed. He, more than anyone, had to put up with my bizarre mood swings and my complaining.

These last two people, Howard Herrera and Mary Ellen Villegas, are the Epitome's future. Their work on this year's book was certainly appreciated; now, however, they have their work cut out for them. I wish I had something memorable to say to next year's Editor and Business Manager. Good luck seems to be all I can offer, no matter how inadequate it sounds.

I do hope, however, that when Howard sits down to write this column next year at this time, he'll feel as I do. Relieved, proud and a little sad. Looking back I have no regrets at having taken the position for a second time. In fact, I derived a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction. My hope is that, as you flip through these pages you, too, will find happiness in the memories of Lehigh in the year Nineteen Hundred and Eighty Five.

Sincerely,

Laura L. Fjeldal
